Paris Even More Excited Stars, Stripes and Skull Nicaragua ad U. S. Her Best Job

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

PARIS, AUG. 10.—The radical papers have accomplished the improbable, showing greater excitement today than yesterday about the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The newspaper Humanite, representing the Communist Party, devotes its entire first page to the case, displaying across five columns a picture of "A New Stars and Stripes."

In the centre of the flag is hung a skull and cross bones and electric chair. There are only twenty-four stars on the flag, with the Eiffel tower in the background. Headings read:

"Shame and Contempt."

"If they assassinate Sacco and Vanzetti."

"If they dare."

"The agony of Sacco and Vanzetti."

"The assassin judge will not budge."

France as a whole is not represented in these expressions, but American Legion visitors should realize that if the men are executed, for some time to come Americans gathering here on gros may be made uncomfortable. Any possibility of physical injury is slight. The government will do everything to afford protection and a genuine welcome.

The Communist party here is not a mere handful of men and a name. It is a strong party backed by sympathy for Sacco and Vanzetti outside the extreme radical groups. That sympathy is greatly increased, naturally, by the admission of the Fuller committee that Judge Thayer acted indiscreetly. There is a feeling that the men should not die by order of a judge branded "indiscreet" by such men as Governor Fuller chose for the committee. A man whose indiscretion would have barred him from the jury should not have power of decision beyond appeal.

The newspaper Humanite leads others by a short distance only. Conservative evening newspapers today treat the Sacco-Vanzetti case most seriously, realising the excitement

SIX BOMB SUSPECTS TRAPPED

Six bomb suspects from New York were seized in an early morning swoop by police of Joy street division upon the Hotel Royal at Cambridge and Sudbury streets, the men, all foreigners, failing to return satisfactory answers to account for their presence in this city.

Believing that the men may know something of the explosions in the New York subway the police wired New York and an answer is expected later today when the men will be taken to police headquarters to be finger-printed.

While the men would not admit that their visit to Boston had any connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case, socialistic literature was found on all of them, one cartoon being particularly vivid. This depicted an electric chair with two skeletons on each side of it, and a casket at its foot. It bore the legend, "An Evening Affair."

The police of the Joy street division considered it significant that the six men did not come to Boston in the busses in which code many who came here to take part in the "death watch" outside the Charlestown State Prison.

They came in a private car which was left at an Endicott street garage when the men went to the hotel.

ANSWERS UNSATISFACTORY.

Sergeant Morrissey learned of the advent of the six suspicious-appearing men, and he, with Patrolmen Campbell and Tarpey, went to the hotel and put the six under arrest when they returned unsatisfactory answers to the questions put them. The men were booked at Station 2

VANZETTI BREAKS HUNGER STRIKE

Appeal to the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in the Sacco-Vanzetti case was allowed today by Judge George A. Sanderson, as Nicola Sacco, Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Celestino Madeiros—respited until midnight August 22—were being transferred out of the State Prison death-house.

A second appeal move, taking exception to Judge Webster Thayer's refusal to revoke the death sentence, grant a new trial or retire from the case himself, was launched by defense attorneys.

Both appeals will doubtless go to the full bench, meeting in extraordinary special session next Tuesday, five days before the respite ends.

Justice Sanderson approved the exceptions taken by Attorney Arthur D. Hill to his decision of three days ago, denying a writ of error, and this action threw the case before the full court.

The Supreme Court justices were notified by Deputy Sheriff Richard J. Murray, official court messenger, to convene in Boston on August 16, after acting Chief Justice Henry K. Braley had conveyed the order to Murray.

WOMAN DIES IN CRASH, HUB DOCTOR AND 2 HELD

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Miss Margaret F. Richardson of South Barr, Nova Scotia, was killed when an automobile in which she was a passenger collided with a machine driven by Dr. Myron J. Hahn of Boston, and was knocked over on its side by another car driven by Frank J. Griffin of West Somerville, Mass.

Miss Richardson was rushed to the Webber Hospital, where she was a student nurse, but died shortly on her arrival there.

William Curtis of this city, who was driving with the victim, was held with Dr. Hahn and Griffin pending police investigation.

LOYALTY OATH TO GIVE DE VALERA UPPER HAND

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Eamon De Valera and all the other members of the Fianna Fail Republican party who were elected to the Dail Eireann at the recent general election, took the oath of allegiance today, qualifying them for participation in proceedings of the Dail.

Several of the Republican deputies were introduced to the speaker of the Dail by Captain William Redmond, leader of the National League group, and Tom Johnson, the parliamentary Labor chief.

The decision of De Valera and his following as interpreted by observers is that the government's defeat under Cosgrave is inevitable, because the Fianna Fail deputies will add greatly to the opposition.

The decision was taken unanimously at a meeting last night, although it was qualified by the announcement that the party would consider the oath merely as an "empty formality," that the Fianna

SACCO'S WIFE BEGS HIM TO END HUNGER STRIKE

Nicola Sacco turned deaf ears today to the pleadings of his wife that he break his hunger strike.

"I begged Nicola to eat today, but he would not," said Mrs. Sacco. "He said, 'That is one thing you should not ask me to do, because I've gone so long, I won't give it up now.'

"I tried to tell him of everything that we are trying to do but I choked up and just had to sit silently in front of his cell. I can't embrace him there, you know, but now that he is back in the other place, I can kiss him when I make my visits.

"I am hopeful. There's still a little fight left in me and I feel strong-er now that there is another chance."

Attorney Michael A. Musmanno, who accompanied Mrs. Sacco to the prison, saw the two men in the barber shop—the usual place for such meetings—after they had been removed to the Cherry Hill section.

"Mrs. Sacco had already pleaded with Sacco to break his hunger strike, and he had told her that he would not, because that was his only means of protesting, but I added my pleadings to hers. However, I don't believe he will eat.

"Even in his great relief at being snatched from the electric chair, he would not relent.

"The men seem to be devoted to

FORD IN AIR WITH LINDY FOR 10 MINUTES

Detroit, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Henry Ford took his first airplane ride today when he climbed into the cockpit of the Spirit of St. Louis with Charles A. Lindbergh at the Ford airport and was taken up this afternoon.

The decision to make the flight apparently was sudden, as no previous indication had been given either by those close to Mr. Ford or by Lindbergh, who spent the night at the Ford home after arriving here late yesterday on his nation-wide air tour.

Provision was made for taking Mr. Ford aloft by installing a special seat in the plane.

The plane, after taking off and cruising above the field, landed about 10 minutes later.

After Henry Ford had landed, Edsel Ford took his place in the plane and was taken up by Lindbergh.

Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commandant at Selfridge field, was the first to greet Henry Ford and Lindbergh when Lindbergh brought the motor king safely to earth.

"How did you like it?" he asked Mr. Ford.

"It was great," Ford replied. "There was nothing to it."

Fitchburg, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A resolution commending Governor Alvan T. Fuller for "his untiring efforts in the interests of justice, in support of our government of law, and in support for institutions" was adopted by rising vote at the State convention of the American Legion here today.

There was no mention of the Sacco-Vanetti case in the resolution.

A telegram from Lieut-Commander Byrd was received today at convention hall, shortly after the opening of the ninth annual convention of the Department of Massachusetts, American Legion, accepting the invitation of the convention to be present at tomorrow's session. It stated that he would be accompanied by Bert Acosta.

SACCO CASE APPEAL GOES BEFORE SUPREME COURT

here, while Justice Crosby is abroad. It was said that Justice Sanderson will sit with the others and pass on an appeal from his own ruling, in order that five judges may give their opinion in the case.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in the Federal Court in Boston, but this, it was explained by Attorney Richard C. Evarts of defense counsel, was merely a formality, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court and Judge Anderson of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals having already rejected such a plea.

Attorney Evarts said the filing of the petition was necessary to make the court records complete, the plea having been brought to Justice Holmes and Judge Anderson more or less informally.

Vanzetti broke his hunger strike by drinking coffee at breakfast time, before he was moved to the Cherry Hill wing of the prison with Sacco and Madeiros. He also drank coffee at noon.

Sacco refused to eat, even though his wife went to the prison and begged him to break his strike, and he is now on the twenty-sixth day of his self-imposed fast. Prison officials are watching him closely, for there is a possibility that the 12 days' respite may bring him near death and make forcible feeding necessary.

Vanzetti threw his arms around Sacco and helped him stumble along as the transfer from the death house to the Cherry Hill section of the prison was made.

VANZETTI CHEERFUL

Two guards, Deputy Warden Hogsett and an assistant, handled the removal at an hour when all other inmates were in their cells. Instead of crossing the main yard, where other prisoners might see them, the three men were led by a devious path around the workshops, but they were out in the open air and saw the blue sky once more.

Vanzetti made a cheerful remark to Sacco about the sunshine, according to the guards, but Sacco did not reply. Sacco's steps were very weak, but he seemed glad to have Vanzetti's assistance instead of help from a guard.

Madeiros, who was leading the way under direction of Hogsett, spoke to nobody. When the west wing was reached, the prisoners were placed each in the same cell he occupied before going to the death house.

Once again Jerry Gedsium, ("Jerry the Pole"), the only other occupant of "murderers' row" in the Cherry Hill wing, has company.

Sacco and Vanzetti were taken out of their cells to the barber shop later to meet Attorney Michael A. Musmanno, one of the defence lawyers, who came to tell of new developments. Aldino Felicani, treasurer of the defense committee, was not allowed to see either prisoner and was forced to wait for Musmanno in the prison office.

Coolidge Hasn't Shown He Is Real Rider

Rapid City, S.D., Aug. 11 (A.P.)—President Coolidge knows how to handle himself on a horse. Whether he could stick on if the animal broke into a gallop or started to rear is something still to be shown.

But so far as walking and trotting are concerned, Mr. Coolidge knows all that is necessary to get along.

It was plain to a couple of correspondents who rode with him to Rushmore Memorial that he knows more about riding than his casual rides would seem to indicate.

The horse which Mr. Coolidge rode is frisky and fast. The horse loves to trot and vut up, and those who have ridden him know he is everything a horseman would want.

HUB AIR MAIL BUSINESS GAINS

Boston business men are beginning to see the advantage of the air mail, and the business between Boston and New York is increasing steadily, according to the reports of the postoffice department at Washington.

In May, 1,890 pounds of mail were carried; in June, 2,603 pounds, and in July, with fewer business days, the figure was 2,222 pounds.

The Colonial Air Transport, Inc., the mail contracting company, received $4,770.19 in May; $7,309.27 in June, and $6,687.50 in July.

POLICE TRAIL SACCO BUS ON HUB STREETS

A motorbus filled with New York radicals and Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers was followed about Boston streets today by a police car, following a decision by the police authorities that the members of the party would not be permitted to hold street meetings.

The bus, decorated with placards, carries eighteen prominent New York radicals who came to Boston with the announced intention of agitating for the release of Sacco and Vanzetti.

The bus parked in Post Office square at noontime and a crowd of several thousand persons quickly gathered. Police reserves were rushed to the scene from the Milk street station and th agitators were ordered to move.

A patrol wagon filled with officers followed the bus through the business district. A traffic policeman refused to allow the bus to make a left hand turn from Tremont street into Park street and the bus continued into Scollay square. When the bus passed out of the district of Station 2, another police car was in waiting to take up the task of following the bus about the city.

Police headquarters announced that the radicals would not be permitted to make public speeches anywhere in the streets of Boston.

While the bus filled with radicals was touring Boston streets, radicals from other cities, who came here intending to stage a demonstration after Sacco and Vanzetti had been electrocuted, were pouring out of the city on every outbound train.

The visitors seemed satisfied that they had accomplished their purpose—that the death of Sacco and Vanzetti had been delayed once more. Police were on guard at all railroad stations but there was no disorder as the visitors took their departure.

New York radicals numbering 100 chartered busses to take them overland to their homes.

by Lieutenant John McGrath, and all claimed to come from Yonkers, N. Y.

The six arrests climaxed an exciting night for the police of the Joy street division.

First they learned to their amazement that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers planned to have a meeting of protest in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, wholly without the knowledge of the clergy in charge.

Circulars had been sent out calling upon sympathizers to meet at No. 35 Bowdoin street. The circulars were issued by the "New York Enforcement League." The police saw that the number was the Church of St. John the Evangelist, and Captain McDevitt hastened to lead a squad to the church.

The clergyman in charge was aghast at the news. They had been delighted when they saw the large number of persons flocking into the church, to pray and worship, as they thought, but the news brought them by Captain McDevitt lent an entirely different color to the large congregation.

ONLY FOR WORSHIP.

One Cowley father, in his cassock, told his hearers from in front of the altar that the church was open at all times to all who wished to enter for prayer and worship, but that it was not a place to hold a meeting, particularly a meeting against the government.

As he spoke from the altar rail two other Cowley fathers, in their cassocks, stood at the doors, telling all who came that the place was open for prayer but not for any Sacco-Vanzetti meeting.

The small army of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers had hardly left the church when a truck pulled up to the door, bearing a banner which told the world that the "New York Enforcement League" delegates had arrived.

He Should Worry!

SMILES AT THREAT

Traffic Officer W. F. Murray of Cambridge, on guard at State Prison, last night received a menacing Sacco letter, but still lives.

DEATH THREAT TO POLICEMAN

"Work tonite and you die" This was the substance of a letter received by Patrolman William F. Murray of the Central Square station, Cambridge, and on traffic duty at Prospect and Cambridge streets.

The letter was intended for delivery yesterday, but was found in the gutter near Murray's post by Patrolman Frank Kotoski. It was addressed to "Cop Murray," and read as follows:

"You work tonite and you die.
"Leave Sacco and Vanzetti live.
"Look out for us."
(Signed) S. V. Z.

Patrolman Murray was on ... ard duty at the Prison Point bridge last night. He was on duty in Cambridge as usual today, and reported the incident to his superiors.

"I'm ready to meet anybody face to face anytime, but this looks like a challenge from one who attacks from the rear," grinned Murray between waves of his signalling hands

CONSULATE AT SOFIA BOMBED

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A bomb was exploded late last night in the gardens of the American consulate here. No one was injured, and there was little damage.

The authorities expressed the belief that the bomb was thrown as a protest in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, but without the intention of causing material damage.

The American legation and consulate are under heavy guard, both uniformed police and secret agents being on duty.

15 Injured as Bomb Explodes in Phone Booth

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The city of Basle was aroused today over the explosion of a bomb in a telephone booth at the street car station in the Barfuesserplatz, which injured 15 persons, two of them women.

The police have no clew, but they believe it was intended as a protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. The station is a mass of ruins. Earlier in the day there had been an hour's strike of Basle workers in sympathy with Sacco and Vanzetti.

LEVINE PLANS TO FLY OVER BOSTON

Paris, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Charles A. Levine, owner of the transatlantic plane Columbia, which is awaiting propitious weather for an attempt to fly, to the American continent, has announced that he is going to try for the prize of $25,000 offered by a Philadelphia newspaper for the first flight from a European capital to the Quaker City.

"It is only an hour more flight than New York," he declared, "and $25,000 is worth picking up."

Maurice Drouhin has mapped out a route in accordance with suggestions made by Giles C. Stedman, navigator and second officer of the steamer Leviathan.

It would take the Columbia over Cherbourg, Plymouth, England; Cape Clear, Ireland; Cape Bonavista, Newfoundland; Prince Edward Island, the West Coast of Nova Scotia and Boston. The route is estimated to measure 3,625 miles.

EXPRESS FOLK TIP OFF GUN PURCHASERS

Police today began a round-up of hundreds of South Boston residents who, during the last week, have received automatic revolvers purchased through a mail order house.

Agents and drivers for an express company, who delivered the weapons, are aiding police and are directing them to the homes where weapons have been delivered within the last ten days.

Only one arrest has been made, but more are expected within the next 24 hours. Stanley Sarzepski, 23, of Woodward street, was pointed out to the police by express drivers as a man to whom they had delivered a revolver. Sarzepski was arrested and taken before Judge Dean in South Boston District Court today and held in $1,000 for hearing tomorrow.

According to police the revolvers being shipped to South Boston have been purchased as a result of an advertisement in foreign language newspapers and periodicals. To get a revolver it is necessary only to fill out a slip which appears with the advertisement. The weapon is then sent, C. O. D. via express.

For 24 hours police of Athens street station have been combing South Boston, checking up on aliens who have recently purchased weapons. Wholesale arrests are anticipated.

'Prejudice' of Thayer Stressed in Bill

THE allegations that Judge Webster Thayer was prejudiced during and after the Sacco and Vanzetti case are stressed in the bill of exceptions filed by Attorney Michael A. Musmanno, associate counsel for the defense, with Clerk Willard E. Sorrell in Superior Court at Dedham today.

The bill of exceptions taken at the time when Judge Thayer denied the motions for a new trial and a revocation of sentence cover more than three typewritten pages and are as follows:

This is an indictment found in the first degree. The defendants were tried before Judge Webster Thayer and a jury, and on July 14, 1921, a verdict of guilty was rendered against them. Various motions for a new trial were filed and severally heard and denied by said Judge Thayer.

Exceptions relating to questions of law raised at the trial and in connection with several motions for new trial, filed prior to sentence were heard and overruled by the Supreme Judicial Court and on April 9, 1927, the defendants were sentenced to death.

Thereafter a petition for clemency was heard by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, and was by him denied on August 3, 1927.

FOR NEW TRIAL

On August 6, 1927, the defendants filed a motion for revocation of sentence and for a new trial. This bill of Exceptions deals solely with the action of the Superior Court upon said motion. Said Motion for Revocation and for New Trial, together with the affidavits filed therewith, may be referred to and are hereby incorporated by reference as a part of this Bill of Exceptions.

Upon the filing of said motion notice thereof was duly given to the attorneys for the Commonwealth. Afterwards, on the same day, defendants' counsel appeared before the chief justice of the Superior Court and made application for a speedy hearing of said motion.

The defendants' counsel called to the attention of said chief justice that said motion was in whole or in part based upon allegations that the said Judge Webster Thayer had been throughout the proceedings in said cause, and still was so prejudiced against the defendants that he could not either legally or as a matter of fact act as a judge in the case against the defendants, and requested the said chief justice to assign some other judge of the Superior Court to hear the said motion.

The said Chief Justice refused to grant the request of defendants' counsel upon the ground that precedent and established practice required that the said motions in the said cause should be heard by the judge who had presided at the original trial thereof and thereupon the said Chief Justice directed that the said motion should be heard before said Judge WeWebster Thayer sitting in the Superior Court, Criminal Session, for Norfolk county, upon Monday, August 8, 1927.

AT DEDHAM

The defendants' counsel then and there protested against said order of said Chief Justice and against his refusal to designate some judge other than the said Judge Webster Thayer to hear the said motion and specifically called to the attention of the said Chief Justice the defendants' claim that his action in the premises was in violation of the rights of their clients under the provisions of Article XXIX of the Declaration of the Rights of the Inhabitants of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, contained in the Constitution of the Commonwealth and of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Thereafter, on Monday, August 8, 1927, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Superior Court for the County of Norfolk, then held at Dedham, and presided over by the said Judge Webster Thayer, said motion came up for hearing pursuant to the order of the said Chief Justice and the defendants' counsel then and there duly objected and excepted to the said motion being heard by the said Judge Webster Thayer and to his acting or purporting to act in any manner as a judge in the said case or passing upon any issues of fact or law therein raised and then and there requested the said Judge Webster Thayer to decline to hear said motion, thereby permitting another application to the Chief Justice to designate some other judge of the court to preside over the hearing on the issue raised by said motions in the light of the refusal of said Judge Thayer to sit therein.

Counsel for the defendants then and there made the claim that for said Judge Thayer to preside over the hearing in said cause and to determine the issues of law and fact raised therein constituted a violation of the rights of the defendants under Article XXIX of the Declaration of Rights in the Constitution of the Commonwealth and under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and objected to proceeding before him.

COULD PRESIDE

Nevertheless the said Judge Webster Thayer, against the objection and exception of the defendants, denied the said request and ruled that he was entitled and required under the law of the Commonwealth and the decision of the Chief Justice to preside over the said hearing and to determine the issues raised by the said motion. To all of which counsel for the defendants excepted and their exceptions were noted by the court.

Thereupon said Judge Thayer proceeded to hear argument from the attorneys for the defendants and directed counsel for the defendants, first to confine argument for the decision of the court to the question of whether or not the Superior Court, as a court, had any jurisdiction to entertain the motion, so far as the same related t on new trial, after sentence had been imposed. Counsel for the defendants then and there objected and excepted to said orde of the court.

The said Judge Thayer thereupon in open court, after hearing argument from counsel for the defendants and from the Attorney-General, dismissed the motion for a new trial on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction to entertain the said motion, and the defendants severally duly excepted thereto.

With respect to the portion of the motion relating to a revocation of sentence and stay of execution the said Judge Webster Thayer, after hearing argument from counsel for the defendants and from the Attorney-General, reserved his decision, and thereafter, on the following day, to wit: August 9, 1927, the said Judge Thayer entered an order denying the said motion so far as the same related to revocation of sentence and to stay of execution, and the defendants severally duly excepted to said denials. Copy of the record of the court showing the said order made August 9, 1927, is hereto annexed and made a part of this bill of exceptions.

By said order of August 9, 1927, the said Judge Thayer purported to save all rights to which the defendants are entitled as a matter of law, whether by exceptions, appeal or otherwise.

GOT RULINGS

The defendants also duly excepted not only to the decision of the Court on each of the foregoing matters, but to the passing upon said motions by the said Judge Webster Thayer in the light of the allegations and affidavits as to prejudice on his part.

Before argument the defendants duly requested in writing the following rulings.

Said rulings were severally refused by the said Judge Thayer and the defendants duly excepted thereto.

WHEREFORE, the defendants being severally aggrieved by the foregoing rulings and refusals to rule bring this their Bill of Exceptions and pray that the same may be allowed.

By their Attorney,
ARTHUR D. HILL,
ELIAS FIELD,
RICHARD C. EVARTS.

Crimeless Night Is Passed While Police Are on Sacco Duty

Between 9:30 last night and 7:30 this morning not a crime of any sort came to the attention of the police. There was not even a fire in the city.

The police blotter, within the limits of these hours, was bare. Moreover, the last entry last night and the first entry this morning were both for insignificant fines, not crimes.

Usually the night blotter is well filled with arrests and reports of all kinds. The night's record was all the more strange, inasmuch as police were concentrated so heavily in the Charlestown district until midnight.

TAPPING SACCO WIRES PROBED

Suspected wire-tapping and delayed service on the telephone lines at the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee headquarters at No. 256 Hanover street led to an investigation by the Public Utilities Commission. It was learned at the State House today.

According to the complaints of members of the committee, operators at the defence headquarters had reason to believe that someone was listening in on all outgoing and incoming calls. Calls were also delayed, members of the committee imagine the complaints, said.

Denies Antiques Theft

Springfield, Aug. 11.—William F. Loerke of East Longmeadow, alleged to be involved in the theft of antiques valued at $2,000 from the home of Dr. S. Josephine Baker of Stamford, Conn., pleaded not guilty to a charge of receiving stolen goods and will have a hearing Aug. 16.

PRECEDENT FOR SACCO CASE IN STORTI APPEAL

If the State Supreme Court is hurriedly summoned to rule within a few days on the Sacco-Vanzetti appeal, there is precedent for such swift action by the high court in the case of Luigi Storti, first slayer put to death in the electric chair in this State.

But in the case of Storti, the appeal came up in May and the Supreme Court, while it acted within two days, did not have to be called into extraordinary session during the Summer recess to do so.

Storti gained respite after respite, and even after the Supreme Court passed speedily on his appeal, in May, 1901, his attorney succeeded in getting it again before that court several months later, and even before the United States Supreme Court.

In May the Supreme Court was called upon to pass on exceptions taken to a ruling by Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who, sitting as a single justice, had refused to set aside the death sentence on the ground that death by electricity was unconstitutional, that the method was cruel and that Storti was a subject of Italy.

This Justice Holmes is the same man who, as a justice of the United States Supreme Court, yesterday rejected a plea by Sacco-Vanzetti defense counsel for a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Holmes made his decision in the Storti case on May 4, 1901. On May 6 the full bench of the State Supreme Court upheld that decision, thus establishing a precedent for swift action in a capital case.

FEAR SACCO WILL COLLAPSE UNLESS HE TAKES FOOD

the State Supreme Court once more, the Sacco-Vanzetti case achieves rare distinction in Massachusetts legal history. Twice the high court has denied appeals.

Judge Sanderson's announcement that he would approve the exceptions taken by Atty. Hill and let the case go to the full bench came after a conference at which Hill and Attorney-General Reading were present in the judge's lobby at Suffolk County courthouse.

Before he signed the official papers it was necessary to have them reprinted to make certain corrections.

NEW LEGAL MOVE

While these changes were being made, Hill left to see Judge Thayer, to request his allowance of exceptions filed at Dedham. If Judge Thayer allows these, they go to the Supreme Court. If he refuses, defence attorneys hope to get them before the high court anyway on a legal procedure known as "leave to prove."

Attorney-General Reading prepared to see Judge Thayer later in the day.

The formal bill of exceptions was filed by Attorney Musmanno at the Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham. It contained a lengthy statement of allegations of prejudice on the part of Judge Thayer.

The bill cited that Judge Thayer refused the request of Attorney Hill to retire from the case and let some other judge pass on the motion for a new trial. That motion was based chiefly on Judge Thayer's alleged prejudice.

"We asked Judge Thayer to decline to sit in the case and he refused," explained Attorney Musmanno. "We also asked that he grant a new trial and revoke the death sentence, and he likewise refused. All his rulings are against the Constitution of the United States.

DRAMATIC SCENES

"If it can be proved that prior to, during and after the trial, the defendants were denied due process of law, the way is clear for a new trial. We can prove it."

The Supreme Court Judges who have been summoned hastily to Boston are Justice Henry K. Braley, now at Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard; Justice Edwin F. Pierce, who is in Maine; Justice James B. Carroll of Springfield; and Justice William C. Waltt of Medford, who is spending the Summer on the Maine coast.

The concentration of defense action in the State courts followed failure to gain entry to the United States courts.

A hurried trip by Mr. Hill to Judge Holmes' Summer place at Beverly proved fruitless as did the appeal for a habeas corpus before Judge Anderson. Accordingly the U. S. Supreme Court and all the Federal courts are closed to the two men, and their case reverts once more to the State Supreme Court which has decided against them on every issue.

Never before has Boston known such a scene as was enacted last night, being staged at the prison and the State House.

At the State House the Governor and his Executive Council argued for four hours over the question of a respite, and when Mr. Hill returned from his futile visit to Judge Holmes he was called in to the Governor's office to discuss his reasons for a respite.

Justice Sanderson's action in postponing his decision on an appeal brought by defence counsel was undoubtedly one of the big stumbling blocks for the Governor and his Council.

The executive council had been in session for more than two hours when it recessed. Throughout the day it had been apparent that the temper of several of the members was strongly against any further had leaked out from the council chamber, it was reported on what appeared to be good authority that Councillor Holmes of Worcester, the home city of Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior Court, had been inclined to oppose any change in the official order for the execution of the men.

DEATH IS HALTED

It was reported also that Councillor Campbell of Quincy, whose district includes nearly all of Norfolk County, where Sacco and Vanzetti were tried, was another of the Governor's official family whose convictions were that there had been already too long a delay in carrying out the findings of the jury.

It was stated by Councillor Smith, senior member of the council, at the time of the recess, that there was nothing before the council for action, and from that it was assumed that the Governor had spent the two hours or more he had been with the council going over the case and discussing with his advisors his course of action.

It was recognized, however, by the members of the council that, regardless of any recommendation the Governor might make, the two prisoners would not be executed early today.

The members of the Council were called for a meeting at noon. During the long wait there were plenty of indications that the Council, if left to use solely its own judgment, would act against further delay.

Governor and seven of the eight living

The conference between the Governor and attorneys-general was unique. It was known that the real problem confronting the Governor was as to his moral right to send men to the chair while they had motions pending before the courts of the State.

The Governor was known to be certain, as set forth in his refusal to interfere with the verdict last week, that the men were guilty, that they had been given a fair trial and that there was nothing improper in the court's refusal to grant them a new trial.

But the Governor, as in the famous Waltham carbarn case, was confronted with the question as to whether he should assume to know

Governor Fuller Lunches In Executive Offices

While the conference with the former law officers was under way, Mr. Hill came to the State House, expecting to be called before the council when it met at noon. He spent his time reading and partaking of a light lunch in the room of the Governor's secretary. He declined to make any comment on the case, except to repeat what the action of Judge Sanderson had been.

Later he conferred with Attorney General Arthur K. Reading, and left the State House. As he was leaving he declined to talk, referring newspaper men to the attorney general.

Mr. Reading was equally reticent when he came out from his conference with Mr. Hill and the attorney general insisted that any statement must come from Governor Fuller.

When the former Attorneys-General left the conference with the Governor, their lips were sealed tightly, each and every one of them positively declining to say anything regarding the case.

An interesting development of the long wait during the afternoon was the visit to the executive offices of Walter Fredericks, clerk of the Supreme Court and Messenger Richard Murray.

Sacco and Madeiros Silent at Good News

At 11:27 all of them were notified by the prison warden that their term of life had been extended for at least 13 days.

It was only a little more than 24 minutes before the time that for all they knew, the death march of the first victim would start. They had been given no inkling of the fact that there was a chance of respite.

Sacco and Madeiros received the news in absolute silence but Vanzetti smiled, thanked the warden and said that he was very glad as it would give him an opportunity of greeting his sister, who is expected in this country next week.

It had been a night of intense drama inside the prison walls with great curious crowds outside and a police army ready to maintain order at any cost.

First intimation of the respite came at 10:35 o'clock when Warden Hendry approached the reporters and said:

"Boys, two of them have been granted a respite."

"Which ones?" shouted the reporters.

"I can't tell you," replied the warden as he retired to his office.

Five minutes later, visibly excited, the warden again came from his office and said: "Boys, the respite is off."

For the next hour the greatest confusion reigned, not only in the prison but in newspaper offices all over the world. The five minutes had been sufficient to send the message "respite" completely around the globe. Wires had been kept open for hours waiting the "flash."

The official confirmation came at 11:20. William L. Reed, secretary of the Governor's Council, gave the official papers to the warden.

Dr. Magrath Was Only State Witness Absent

The warden immediately hurried down the corridor to the cells in the death house, where the men were all prepared for death. At 11:27 Hendry told them that they had a few hours of life until a week from next Monday, at least.

It will mean that they cannot go to the chair until the morning of August 23 at the earliest.

All the witnesses who were to have been present at the execution were present at the prison, with the exception of Medical Examiner Magrath, when the official respite announcement was made.

In less than 10 seconds a score or more of telegraphers had jumped to their instruments and the word was flashed throughout the country that two of the men in the famous case had been granted a stay of execution. Cable officers were likewise notified and the word flashed around the world.

Three minutes later Warden Hendry turned to newspapermen, after hanging up the receiver on his desk telephone and announced, "There has been a respite for three." This word was likewise flashed by wire all over the world.

The prison in the meantime had been thrown into a turmoil. Officials were rushing about in every direction. Newspapermen were hurriedly communicating with their offices, attempting to complete their stories for first editions.

While word of the respite was being flashed to the prison, and a few minutes later ordered held by telephone from the State House the three condemned men sat in their cells in the death house fully prepared for death.

Though they had been outwardly calm as long as Warden Hendry was in the death house the instant he had gone, the sullen attitude that has marked all three of the men during their stay there vanished. Even Madeiros, who has no ultimate hope, relaxed. The three sang, laughed with one another, called out cheerfully to their guards.

These men who had slept peacefully enough, apparently, when death loomed near, could not sleep at all for hours after the word of the respite had been taken to them. One would lie down on his cot for an instant only to be called by one of the others and the general conversation would begin again.

Just before they were called out to make the trip across the yard to Cherry Hill did any of them appear to sleep.

Though the other inmates of the prison were supposed not to know anything of the respite, the word passed from cell to cell and man in the prison knew all the new hope within a few minutes of the time the council had its verdict.

Vanzetti is a general favorite in the prison where he has been long confined, and he was greeted by silent congratulations from his cell in Cherry Hill aisle as he crossed the yard.

SACCO'S WIFE PLEADS IN VAIN FOR HIM TO BREAK HUNGER STRIKE

SHE FIGHTS NOW WITH NEW HOPE

He Believed Last Night Was the End and Carried Girl's Letter Over Heart

each other more than ever before. hat was brought home to me the they day, when Sacco refused to ge the Federal Court petition, and anetti insisted that whatever was done he wished his fate linked en rely with that of his friend.

"While we were talking today, anetti said to Nicola, 'We expect to execute you next night, didn't ou?' Sacco was very solemn, an swered, 'Yes.' I thought it was the ruth to say.

CARRIES GIRL'S LETTER

Sacco awaited the death that did not come with his little girl's letter in a pocket over his heart, accord ing to his wife. The words that it contained—"You are the best daddy in the world"—were his sole conso lation, she said. "I wouldn't let that letter out of my hands, and if I was going to die, I wanted to die with it near my heart," he told his wife, Rosa, today when she saw him in the death house before he was removed to another part of the prison.

Happiness reigned in the home of Mrs. Mary Madeiros, mother of Celestino Madeiros, in New Bedford, for she had expected to mourn today over the body of her son, and had fainted at State Prison last night after what she considered her last farewell.

She bore up for an hour during her visit to the death house, but gave way when she left. From the warden's office she was carried to the office of a doctor nearby and treated before going home with her married daughter.

WHAT SUPREME COURT CAN DO

Washington, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Lawyers studying Supreme Court precedents on the Sacco-Vanzetti case expressed the opinion today that while a justice of the court might have power to grant permission for filing a writ of habeas corpus, none had exercised that authority in their recollection.

The general practice has been for the justice to suggest that application for such writ be made to the proper Federal District Court. A number of petitions for permission to file writs of habeas corpus have been docketed in the Supreme Court without the lower Federal courts passing upon them, it was recalled, but in such instances when the court was in recess individual justices, upon advice that such a petition had been filed, went no further than to grant a stay of execution until the full court could determine whether it would permit filing of the petition.

It was pointed out that under the established practice of the Federal courts, writs of habeas corpus were granted only when the jurisdiction of the lower courts was challenged. So far as known here, there has been no contention that the Massachusetts courts were without jurisdiction.

With the issue centring around alleged prejudice of the trial judge and questioning of his rulings, the usual ground for review in the Supreme court would have been by writ of error. The law provides that such a writ must be obtained within three months after the final decision in the lower courts, which time has expired in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Attempt to Blow Up B. & O. Shops in Baltimore Foiled

Baltimore, Aug. 11 (U.N.S.).—Unidentified persons attempted to plant explosives in the Mount Clare shops of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in the southwestern section of the city today.

Rushing to the scene at the call of the railroad watchman, police found two large holes dug under one of the buildings. The watchman had been aroused by the dull thud of the digging picks. As he moved to a nearby telephone, the invaders leaped into a large automobile and fled. The shops are the largest in the B. & O. system.

Kitchen on Wheels Feeds Police in Prison Guard

State Police, with a military rolling kitchen, started from Commonwealth Armory shortly before midnight, making the prison their objective.

On the way to Charlestown they fed every Boston policeman encountered, and at midnight they passed out doughnuts, ham and chicken sandwiches and coffee to all the police, Boston officers and State constabulary alike on guard there.

Lieutenant Joseph O'Connor was in charge of the kitchen detail.

It's Wonderfully Interesting to Atty. A. D. Hill

"The situation is wonderfully interesting," was the comment of Attorney Arthur D. Hill, counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, as he received congratulations of his staff over the respite.

Looking somewhat tired, Attorney Hill walked briskly into his inner office, where he plunged into the task of getting ready to appear before Judge Sanderson on his bill of exceptions.

Hill would not reveal his plans for continuing the battle for the two men in case he meets defeat in the Supreme Court of the State.

38 FINED FOR STATE HOUSE 'DEATH WATCH'

The second batch of 39 Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers arrested for "death watch" parading in front of the State House, appeared in Municipal Court today and 38 were fined $5 each. The case of the 39th, Aime Hellikko of Worcester was heard in Juvenile Court.

Of the 38 arraigned before Judge Dowd, 35 pleaded guilty. These included Dorothy Parker, poetess, and John Dos Passos, writer, both of New York. George Kraska, Bertrand D. Wolfe and George L. Teeble, also of New York, pleaded not guilty. Teeble originally pleaded guilty, but changed his mind and retracted.

The 38 who pleaded guilty were arraigned in one group, probably the largest to be so arraigned in Municipal Court in some years. With the exception of Dorothy Parker, who was on the verge of tears, the defendants seemed jubilant.

The usual crowd was on hand when the paraders appeared, held in check by special police details, who refused to permit anyone to enter the courtroom until they had demonstrated their right to.

The defendants were supported by numerous other Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, including Ruth Hale, president of the Lucy Stone League, and wife of Heywood Broun, noted New York columnist. These supporters, however, were compelled to remain in the corridors until the tion.

The Mayor met the emergency executive committee at luncheon at the Parker House. Present were Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, Dr. F. X. Maloney, city health commissioner; William P. Long, chairman of the park commission; Edward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated; Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission. Joseph P. Manning, president of the trustees of the Boston City Hospital, and Dr. John J. Dowling.

Various members of the committee reported adequate protection had been provided for the elevated system, the terminals and public buildings. It was also reported the City Hospital had made preparations to handle any emergency that might arise.

'CRISIS CHIEFS' REPORT TO NICHOLS

Mayor Nichols planned to return to his Summer home at Duxbury late today after a hurried visit to Boston to assure himself the city was being protected adequately against possible outrages.

The Mayor, after a lengthy session with members of the executive committee of the Mayor's Emergency Committee, expressed himself as "very well satisfied with the situation."

RAILROAD MEN AFTER ALL WHO IGNORE WARNINGS

Salem officials of the B. & M. R. R. are adopting a new scheme to curb motorists who do not heed the "Stop" signals held by crossing tenders at the Norman street grade crossing outside the railroad station here.

N. Y. Students to View Sacco Murder Scene

Members of the New York Students' Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee are to visit South Braintree and other places that figured in the payroll murders. The first of a series of personally conducted tours was announced today by Miss Ruth Thompson, chairman of the committee.

The start will be made at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning from the home of Edward Houlton James at No 46 Mt. Vernon street, Beacon Hill. In South Braintree the students will pass the Three K factory where Sacco worked. From there they will go to the Manley woods, where the alleged bandit car was found and from there to the Concel home, Bridgewater Centre, where the crime of December 24, 1919, took place.

The tours, which are planned to give the students, most of whom are from New York, Philadelphia, and Cleveland, an opportunity to visit the scenes in the famous case and get acquainted with the layout of the land.

35 INJURED IN LONDON RIOT LED BY GIRL

London, Aug. 11. — Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women Communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor Gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it. It was the worst disorder that England had seen since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park, at which inflammatory speeches were made. A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared:

WARNS AMERICA.

"I warn you, I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton (who is at present on vacation in Scotland), would be frightened into cabling the State Department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

Waving red flags and singing "The Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

In the van was a young bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting:

"The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti."

MOB OF 10,000.

Rapidly reinforced by thousands the mob numbered fully 10,000 when it reached the approaches to Grosvenor Gardens.

He Tells 'Em

New York, Aug. 11.—Her husband's "big taffy business" in Detroit proved to be nothing more than a position on the streets where he begged, says a wife suing for divorce.

ROME HEARS OF SACCO RESPITE WITH RELIEF

Rome, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—News that a further respite had been granted Sacco and Vanzetti reached the populace of Rome and the other large cities through special editions of the newspapers, which were snatched up by the thousands.

Coming at the last moment before the time set for the execution of the two Italians, the respite was hailed with expressions of relief in many quarters, despite the fact that the condemned men's political opinions would put them in the class of enemies of the Fascist regime, were they in Italy.

Publication of Premier Mussolini's recent letter to Sacco's father, saying Mussolini had done everything permissible under international usage to save the men, has lifted the editorial reserve maintained up to the present time.

Ezio Garibaldi, member of the famous liberator's family, immediately after Mussolini's letter had become public, printed a strong article in his newspaper for Garibaldi legionaires, under the caption "Liberty, Not Pity," and this phrase is widely repeated.

Chicago Delegation Coming to 'Picket Death Cells'

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Demonstrations of sympathy for Sacco and Vanzetti will be held in 200 American and foreign cities this week-end, James P. Cannon, secretary of the International Labor Defense, said today.

Strikes are being urged, Cannon declared, and a walk-out in the anthracite coal fields is expected.

Local organizations of the Labor Defense are forming delegations to go to Boston "to picket the death cells," Cannon announced.

SOVIET THREAT TO PUT THAYER IN 'CHAIR'

Moscow, Aug. 11.—The official Soviet newspaper Pravda today threatened the judge who sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti to "similar destruction," saying:

"The proletarians have learned from the capitalists how to kill scientifically. Some day the workers will place Judge Thayer and others in the same chair in which Communists die."

The respite was hailed here today as a temporary victory for world proletarianism, which, Communists declared, had made its voice heard above "the bourgeois cries for vengeance," at the same warnings were sounded against further treachery.

Communist leaders urged the working masses of the Soviet Union to renew their fight with increased vigor during the remaining days, with the object of bringing about final liberation of the condemned men.

IRISH PROBLEM IS ECONOMIC, SAYS HEATON

Williamstown, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Ireland's problems are regarded as economic rather than political by Professor Herbert Heaton of Queens University, Kingston, one of the speakers in the round table discussion of the Institute of Politics devoted to the British commonwealth of nations.

He described Ireland during the past six years as "humdrum and domestic," comparatively speaking, and declared that since 1921 the country had almost ceased to be conspicuous news material.

TAXES REDUCED.

Evidence of Ireland's industrial and financial development was offered by Miss Thakla Beere of the statistical bureau of the Irish Free State. Taxes have been reduced 22 per cent., she said, the Shannon River is being harnessed for power development; an agricultural credit corporation has been proposed, and more than eighty new factories have been opened.

She expressed the expectation that further development of aviation would stimulate Ireland's foreign trade.

A plan for farm relief by the establishment of a regulatory agricultural board has been proposed by Dr. Joseph S. Davis of the Food Research Bureau of Stamford University.

ITALY PAYS TOO HIGH.

Italy has benefitted under Fascist rule, but has paid too high a price for its improvement, in the opinion of Professor Henry R. Spence of Ohio State University.

Professor Spence asserted that the test of a good dictatorship is its capacity for becoming a constitutional monarchy. This condition does not seem imminent in Italy, he said.

SPENDS WEEK IN JAIL FOR SHOOTING HUSBAND

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (I.N.S.).—Irene Presnikoff, known in films as Irene Preston, was at liberty today following a week's incarceration in county jail, where she had been held on a charge of shooting her husband, Idor Presnikoff, former Russian officer, now a film actor.

Mrs. Presnikoff, who was taken ill in jail, was released on her promise to appear a week hence. Presnikoff said his wife shot him when he refused to return to her.

STUNT RIDER KILLED IN 300-FOOT PLUNGE

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Eldon Horn, 37, motorcycle stunt rider of Los Angeles, plunged to his death over a 300-foot sea cliff near here when the parachute that was supposed to float him down to the beach became entangled in the heavy motorcycle.

BANK GIRL HELD IN ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL

Ridgewood, N. J., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—An attractive 21-year-old bank clerk, whose reputation was unblemished in the community, was held under $5,000 bail today, accused of blackmailing Mrs. F. A. Von Moschisker, leader of Ridgewood's social set and wife of a prominent New York attorney.

The girl, Miss Sarah Mowell, is charged with "sending threatening letters demanding payment of $40,000 from Mrs. Von Moschisker, for more than a year.

One letter made public by Prosecutor A. C. Hart accused Mrs. Von Moschisker of "trying hard to get me in bad with the bank," and threatened that blackmail letters would be written to "prominent people" on Mrs. Von Moschisker's monogrammed stationery unless $20,000 each was paid to a certain "Miss —— and Mr. ——."

"You will never convince a jury that you hadn't written them," the letter read, "when it's your own paper. You ought to get about five years. Ha, ha."

The prosecutor said that investigations by handwriting and finger-print experts convinced him that the letters were written by the young woman.

Former Judge E. B. Randall of Paterson, whose name was mentioned in the letter as the one to whom "$20,000 can be paid," was retained as counsel for Miss Mowell. He announced he would fight the case "to a finish and completely vindicate" the girl.

FIREMEN WON'T WORK UNTIL THEY ARE PAID

Williamson, W. Va., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Members of the city fire department, with the exception of Chief Stock, have gone on strike and have refused to answer any alarms until pay checks for June and July are received.

The controversy started when Mayor Hatfield refused to sign a pay check for the city clerk's stenographer. The city clerk, in reprisal, then declined to countersign the firemen's salary checks.

SEIZE BRITISH SHIP WITH $300,000 LIQUOR

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Laden with 5,000 cases of liquor, valued at $300,000 at bootleg prices, the British steel trawler Sebastopol was seized today by the coast guard as she was passing the Narrows. The trawler was towed under guard to an anchorage off the Statue of Liberty, to be turned over to customs authorities.

$18,000 Gem Theft

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Theft of jewelry valued by its owner, Mrs. William A. Pringle of New York, at $18,000 from the home of J. B. Field, in Beverly Hills, where she was a guest, was revealed by the sheriff's office.

NAB SUSPECT IN 7-MILE CHASE

After a seven-mile chase from Mattapan square to Canton, in which two shots were fired, Patrolman Patrick O'Reilly of Station 19 early today arrested Kenneth Trimble, 22, of Mountfort street, Back Bay, for larceny of an automobile.

The machine was stolen from William A. Cahill, Fuller street, Brookline. Trimble was turned over to the Brookline police.

O'Reilly was pulling a duty call in Mattapan square when he recognized the number on a passing car as that of a stolen machine. Commandeering a taxicab, the officer gave chase. At Blue Hill avenue and Canton avenue, Canton, the taxi drew alongside the speeding automobile, crowding it to the side of the road, while O'Reilly, with gun in hand, ordered the driver to stop.

He did so, but leaped to the road and ran into the woods with the policeman after him. The chase ended when O'Reilly fired two shots in the air.

Why ?

A reliable authority on motor fuels has made the statement that he prefers the regular grade of Jenney Gasoline to the premium motor fuels being offered at an advance in price per gallon.

JENNEY GASOLINE

The regular grade of Jenney Gasoline is particularly adapted to the efficient operation of the modern automobile engine. Why change?

JENNEY GASOLINE

From the flash of the spark to the end of every piston-stroke, Jenney Gasoline delivers a steady thrust of even power, without the coughing and choking caused by some fuels — and coughing and choking react on your motor just the same as on the human system.

JENNEY GASOLINE

Your engine will respond without knocking or balking when you desire more speed or put it to a hard pull.

JENNEY GASOLINE

A certain amount of carbon is unavoidable, since all gasoline is made up of hydrocarbons—but Jenney Gasoline vaporizes and burns quickly and cleanly, forming a minimum of carbon.

JENNEY GASOLINE

Why experiment with your motor? The standards set by the Jenney Company are such that you are certain of dependable quality in Jenney Gasoline—always. Their experts are constantly experimenting with the best developments in motor fuels, and when any improvements are made you can depend upon Jenney having them for you.

STOCK IN PROBE CRASHES TO 75

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—The bottom virtually dropped out of Manhattan Electrical Supply on the stock exchange today when the most hundred shares were sold at prices ranging from a point to 75 points below the previous close. Dealings in the issue were suspended pending an investigation by the governing committee.

The stock had recently sold at around 113. Heavy selling orders poured in on the exchange floor when the market opened, and in a few minutes the price had dropped to 75. Trading was then suspended.

CAKE MAKERS HAVE OUTING

Putting, baseball and various other athletic activities for the day, the party engaged in field sports and a series of events which stimulated hearty competition for the prizes awarded.

The big event of the day was a baseball game in which the married men defeated the single men by a score of 7 to 6. Commissioner of Public Health Bolton refereed a baseball game between Mayor Curley's team and Governor Fuller's team, which resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 10 to 9.

BIG INCREASE IN NASH SALES

Official records of the Nash Motors Company show that last month sales and production were 30 per cent greater than any July in the history of the company. The production for the month was 14,000 cars.

"August sales and production will surpass July by a wide margin," predicted L. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash car. "Based on orders now in hand, August not only will be the biggest August we have ever had, but it will eclipse all previous sales and production records, and will go down as the biggest single month in the history of the company.

"The seven-bearing crankshaft motors with which all cars in the three Nash series are equipped, the new easy-riding Nash springs of a secret process alloy steel, the handsome appearance of the twenty new models in the new Nash line, the lower-lodge type bodies now regularly used and the countless other refinements and improvements have all served to create a tremendous demand since the introduction of the new line June 24.

"As a result, the combined daily production at all three of the company's plants, Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, is greater than at any time since the first car bearing the Nash nameplate was passed from the factory," said Mr. McCarty.

GOODYEAR TIRE TO OPEN BIG PLANT IN ENGLAND

"Another evidence of leadership in the tire industry is the announcement of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. that it will open a new tire manufacturing plant in Wolverhampton, England this year," said W. H. Symons, Lee Heights, Mass.

"Announcement of the new Lincoln 8 has been made by Edward W. Lyon of Lincoln, who explained that the duty imposed on American cars imported into England is largely responsible for the decision to manufacture there in that country.

"A plant and factory are to be erected, have been acquired at Worsborough Dale. The present buildings now erected will have a capacity of 2,000 tires and tubes per day, and additions will be made as the business warrants.

"The factory is a strictly modern one-story structure more than 1,000 feet long with walls varying from 25 to 30 feet and is two stories high for a height as a tire factory.

"The building machinery and equipment will be shipped promptly from the parent plant at Akron, and the factory will be in production by the end of the year. A number of Akron engineers and production men will leave immediately to assist in the installation of machinery and to start operations.

WHIPPET SIX IN SEVERE TEST

The unusual acceleration of the Whippet Six and the efficiency of the new 4-wheel brake equipment are both illustrated in a test recently made near Los Angeles when the Whippet Six established a record of 1 mile standing start in 50 seconds, averaging 69 miles an hour.

The record was made by a stock sedan. Wright, the standard coach driven by "Hi" Hughes of Los Angeles. The test was made under the observation of Los Angeles newspaper men who accompanied Hughes on the trip and held the watch which timed the time according.

One of the official observers describes the 50-mile journey as follows:

"We were off to a flying start, the Whippet Six reaching a speed of 60 miles an hour. From that speed at the end of the first mile the car came to a halt in about six seconds, the four-wheel brakes responding instantly to make for other short test. Whippet was then started from rest as an hour to nothing in five seconds, and there was no instant and the car accelerated to 60 miles an hour in 20 seconds.

"It would exactly one hour to make the round trip of 50 miles, and the time out for the turn, which was only about three seconds."

NEW LA SALLE TOWN SEDAN IS INTRODUCED

Another new addition to the La Salle body line, the town sedan, is shown at five-passenger close-coupled model just introduced is a striking appearing characteristic La Salle, but marked by unusual features in seating arrangement, curves of the rear and design of the rear quarter.

To secure a more than usually comfortable atmosphere for driver and passengers the rear seat has been moved forward several inches closer to the driving seat, giving practically the same effect as in a sport type body.

By the use of a cut-away under the front seat, more than sufficient leg room is provided for rear-end passengers, disproving the generally accepted idea that the close-coupled type of body must necessarily be lacking in roominess.

Added comfort is provided by short side armrests in the rear seat and deep, well-spring upholstery. The front door is exceptionally wide and the rear door is smartly narrow, conforming in its shape to the lines of the rear fender.

Other features are the metal back and the distinctive body lines of the rear, which terminate in an attractive contour, giving a small deck effect at its juncture of body and chassis. The model is beautifully appointed and is furnished in striking color schemes.

Humanite, founded by Jean Jaures, is run by Vaillant Couturier and Marcel Cachin, both members of Parliament. Cachin is serving three months in prison for inciting troops to rebel. Workers, generally, are convinced that "capital" is executing two innocent men. Many workers have gone on strike in the most highly paid factories. American automobile branches, for instance, to express sympathy and disapproval.

This is cabled for the information of American Legion members planning to visit Paris next month. If the men are not executed, all will be peaceful and the magnificent effect of Lindbergh's flight will resume its sway.

Laws of New York allow savings banks to take $7,500 in savings from one individual. Formerly the limit was $5,000. It is still too small. Metropolitan Life Insurance statistics show that it costs $6,167 to raise a girl and $6,077 for a boy, to bring them up to eighteen years of age.

Seven thousand five hundred dollars isn't too much "capital" in these days for a majority of men and women to set aside for their children.

The outrageous thing is that the houses, the little homes in which families are raised for the good of the country, are taxed to their full value.

Now, sacred institutions, and have as good a right to be free from taxation as any church, orphan asylum or Masonic hall, and should be tax-free.

Organized labor requests the United States to withdraw its forces from Nicaragua and let Nicaraguans "work out their own problems." If the United States plans to build a sea level canal through Nicaragua, which would be better than the Panama route, and if it has obtained the right to build from competent Nicaraguan authorities, the canal should be built, regardless of opposition.

This country is interested in Fraulein Thea Rasche, well named. The lady flies alone, turns somersaults in the air, rolls over sideways, drops down with terrific speed forward and backward, catching herself in time. She can do a "vertical tailspin," straightening out and going up again when within two hundred feet of the ground.

That's a new field for women, who will make a great success in it. Better than anybody else she can SING, ACT, console failures, inspire the dull and observe the stars.

Her best job, however, is, and will remain, motherhood.

SOMERVILLE MAN HURT SERIOUSLY IN FALL

John J. Maloney of Somerville avenue, Somerville, was severely injured about the back and left leg today when a gutter on which he was working, in Otis street, East Somerville, gave way and dropped him 25 feet to the ground.

He was taken to Somerville Hospital. Malcolm Blue of Nouras road, Arlington, working with Maloney, saved himself by seizing a ladder.

LESS TYPHOID IN BAY STATE

July saw the establishment of a new low monthly record for typhoid fever in Massachusetts, Commissioner of Public Health George H. Bolow revealed today. The number reported was 31 as against 46 for the same period a year ago.

The commissioner declared that an increased dread of the disease during the past year had caused it. 47 cases might have been expected.

On the other hand, more cases of scarlet fever, measles and chicken pox were reported than in any previous July for the history of the department, it was said.

DODGE SEDAN MAKES HIT

New standards of performance and beauty are to be found in Dodge Brothers latest sedan, introduced as the first body type in an entirely new line of four cylinder cars. In presenting this sedan Dodge Brothers have come to the fore with a car so new and so advanced in engineering features that it has been accorded a most enthusiastic reception by the public.

In the first two days $3,250,000 in orders were received and since then production has been increased.

The new car is asserted as the fastest four in America, giving a 4-minute performance with surprising ease and smoothness and acceleration from 0 to 25 miles per hour in less than 7 seconds through gears. So great is the power of its engine in relation to the weight of the car that it is never forced to labor and is therefore free from the roughness and pounding that result from strain.

Steering and parking ease have been accomplished by placing the bearings in the steering spindles as well as in the steering gear itself. The car will make a full turn in a 35-foot street.

The interior is done in mohair, with roller curtains, head linings and carpets to match. The windows are French style, glazed with genuine plate glass, and such fixtures as dome light door handles, window regulators and robe rail are heavily nickel-plated. The unique instrument board features a 75-mile speedometer and is finished in the new "Graduet" effect.

In line and proportion the standard sedan duplicates the deluxe sedan, differing only in fittings and equipment. It is designed for an all purpose car of great utility—fleet, stylish, durable, beautiful.

It is finished in durable lacquer, the rich colors being permanent in all shades. The interior is upholstered in leather and is proof against wear for several seasons of hard use.

Held in Fake Claims

PARIS RADICALS REJOICE AT SACCO STORY

Paris, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—"They are alive" was the eight-column headline printed by the Communist newspaper L'Humanite today over a full page special edition story of the respite granted to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Other captions beneath the headline read "Governor Fuller retreated before world-wide condemnation," "The workmen's movement henceforth will prevent the assassination of these two innocents," and "At the last minute Governor Fuller backed down."

The reprieve is described by L'Humanite as a "miracle of an aroused universal proletarian conscience" and its article continues "With the word, 'Now let's exact the liberty of two martyrs.'"

"FORCED TO FALL BACK."

In an editorial signed by the Socialist Deputy Vaillant-Couturier, L'Humanite says:

"At the moment of assassination the most brute capitalism, the most cynical and best equipped the imperialism with trained red and crushing wheels the typical regime of bourgeois dictatorship, the American capitalism was forced to fall back."

It refers to the "shameful abandonment such as that if the American Federation of Labor."

As the hour for the execution approached, the interest in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which was unexampled by any foreign happening in recent years, reached fever point.

IMAGINATION FIRED.

The imagination of the French man was fired by the spectacle of the two men waiting in the death house for the fatal current while friends without were moving heaven and earth in a last effort to save them.

All through the evening there were frequent telephone inquiries at the Associated Press offices and the headquarters of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee from those anxious for news of the fate of the two men.

McCOY, WOOD'S CHOICE AS HIS SUCCESSOR

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR., Editor of Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 11.—Records of the War Department reveal that Frank R McCoy of Pennsylvania was urged several years ago by Governor-General Leonard Wood former Governor General W Cameron Forbes and Philippine leaders of all factions, to accept the vice-governor-generalship of the Philippine Islands with a view to succeeding General Wood as governor-general when Wood finished his work in the Islands.

Some of the strongest endorsers of General McCoy for this position at that time came from members of Filipino and from the bitter enemies, the Moro leaders of Mindanao.

Brigadier General McCoy was not then eligible for retirement under the army law. He was unwilling to resign his position in the army and was therefore unable to accede to the requests that came from so many widely different quarters that he go in training at Manila to succeed Governor General Wood.

MAY PREFER ARMY.

Nobody here pretends to know whether General McCoy would be willing today to retire from the active list of the army, even to accept the Governor-generalship of the Philippines. The profession of arms is his chosen calling. He much prefers it to any other.

However there is a difference between retiring from active duty with the army and resigning from the army, for in the event of war or in national emergency the President can always order the retired officer to active duty.

General McCoy was on the staff of General Wood as Governor-General of Cuba as chief of staff of the United States Army, as Military Governor of the Moro province, as commanding general of the Philippines and later as Governor-General of those islands.

He was in complete charge of the services at Arlington when all the remains of the great commander was finally put to the graves of his Rough Rider comrades of the war with Spain.

SAILS FOR NICARAGUA.

General McCoy has sailed from New York to Nicaragua on duty in the same sort of mission to which he was frequently assigned by General Wood. The Nicaraguan government requested that its elections next year be supervised by a representative of the United States.

For it is most important in the President Coolidge finally named General McCoy upon the recommendation of Henry L. Stimson of New York who was President Taft's Secretary of War as a General Wood was chief of staff and who recently returned from Nicaragua on a special mission for the President.

The fact that both Filipino and Moro leaders joined Governor General Wood and former Governor-General Forbes in urging General McCoy to put himself in line several years ago to succeed Governor General Wood, explodes the theory of Old Guardsmen that the people of the Philippines have a grudge against anybody and everybody who wears the uniform of the United States army.

That Gaynor is very largely the connection of a group of lame-duck politicians in the United States who have long been trying to grab for themselves all the jobs and all the public lands in the Philippines that they can get their hands on. That is why they have been trying to transfer the Philippines to the Interior department.

In the War Department the expectation was reiterated that President Coolidge will be in no hurry to select a successor to Governor General Wood, but will be entirely content to permit Vice-Governor Gilmore to continue as acting governor general for the present.

30,000 Horses Dying of Thirst to be Killed for Meat

Portland, Ore., Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Between 30,000 and 40,000 wild mustang horses in eastern Oregon are dying of thirst in Deschutes and Crook Counties, A. L. Cross, head of the state work of the Oregon Humane Society declared today. A dearth of water already has brought death to hundreds of the roaming mustangs, he said.

Plans to bring the horses to Portland for slaughter have been made by the Humane Society officers and N. J. Simms, county judge of the Prineville. The horses will be killed here and the meat shipped to Europe, where it is highly prized.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Newport Smart Set Takes Reservations for the Invitation Tennis.

NEWPORT IS ALL AGOG with the coming invitation tennis tournament, which commences Monday week. With great foresightedness the host and mighty of the social stronghold have long since made reservations, perhaps their preference ran to the boxes and reservations in the stands, that have these many years been the gathering point for the fashionables (or perhaps they find it pleasant, as an innovation to sit beneath one of the gaudy umbrellas that have been set up near the western side. At any rate, whether it be box or sunspot it be numbreds that to the chance every last thing is already reserved. A complete section of social lions will surround the players at this much anticipated contest.

MRS. F. LOTHROP AMES, WITH her lively young daughter, Miss Mary Ames, and the smart guests they will have with them, intend to see the tennis in the newer way—from beneath a bright-hued umbrella. Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., on the other hand, prefers the stands and a box as has been the Vanderbilt manner through many tennis seasons. The Cameron McRae Winslows have a box. So also the William Woodwards and the T. Suffern Tallers.

MISS MARTHA CODMAN HAS a box. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer has a box. Mrs. Elisha Dyer, the Robert Ogden Barons, the Cornelius Tangemans and the Cornelius Vanderbilts all have made box reservations. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, just back from Europe, will entertain their friends beneath one of the umbrellas on the far side. Mrs. James Denis n Sawyer will rule over an umbrella group. So, too, will Mrs. William Reid Webb, mother of the Miss Romaine Brixton, who is a Newport debutante this Summer.

MRS. KENNETH BUDD, SHE of the charming frocks and Parisian chic, follows the newer trend and reserves an umbrella. Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr. of Boston, will be in Newport for this important tennis (Mr. Gardner is playing) and share a box with Mrs. Gardner's sisters, Mrs. Gilbert Congdon and Mrs. Dudley Davis. The Gardners have a house at Bristol near the Congdons this Summer, not so many miles from Newport, where the Davises occupy "Wyndhamridge" out on Brenton road.

MRS. VINCENT ASTOR IS A box holder. Mrs. Ogden Livingston Mills is an "umbrella holder." Tennis occupies a high place, and rightly, in the Summer scheme of things at Newport. Between tennis at the Casino, swimming at Bailey's Beach and golf at the Country Club the smart set may keep itself in fine fettle, does it feel sufficiently energetic to follow such a strenuous athletic round. Tennis is paramount at the moment, however. The match at the Casino, now going on, bring out some fine talent.

SUCH SPIRITED PLAYERS AS Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Ogden Mills, Miss Marion Wickes, Miss Emelie Winslow, Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., Miss Hoy Morris and Miss Lily Cushing are on the lists. Feminine Newport goes Helen Wills and the famous sun visor one better and wears a chapeau, small and snug, with a narrow brim, when she plays tennis. Mrs. Ogden Mills wore such an affair, perhaps to protect the eyes from Old Sol's bright light, and perhaps with a thought for the complexion, as well. At any rate it was very becoming, and toned beautifully with her frock of peche silk. Mrs. Mills is one of Newport's smartest young matrons; she is both fashionable and chic.

MISS JULIA BERWIND strolled into the Casino to have a look at the tennis. Miss Berwind, following out her penchant for shades of yellow, was in a striking ensemble including several tints, ranging from honey to golden brown. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer also strolled about, watching the lithe young players. Hardly a day passes that Mrs. Thayer, of the governors, does not put in an appearance at the Casino. She finds the late afternoon concerts done by symphony players, very delightful, both for the music and for chat and a cup of tea beneath one of the gay umbrellas that this season dot the velvety Casino turf.

RAID YACHT OF RICH N. Y. MAN ON SPITE TIP

The pique of a cook discharged from the palatial cabin cruiser, "Grey Goose," now anchored off Wood's Hole, today brought about the issuance of a Federal liquor complaint against Arthur A. Brown, wealthy New York owner of the craft.

According to local customs officials here, a contraband crew boarding "Grey Goose" as she dropped anchor off Wood's Hole on a trip re-layed to them from Newport, R. I. and New London, Ct.

The tip, relating to presence of liquor on the craft was supplied to the two coastguard stations by the discharged cook.

The boarding party at Wood's Hole seized a small quantity of beer and whisky, out of which the liquor complaint evolved and to which Brown will answer in Federal Court here Monday.

OATH WILL GIVE VALERA UPPER HAND IN DAIL

Fail's only allegiance was to the Irish nation.

Notwithstanding this there was general surprise that De Valera had allied himself with the decision, for of all the Republican he has been most persistent in his refusal to take the oath.

Only a few days ago he was reported to have declared that rather than pledge allegiance to "a foreign sovereign" he would resign leadership of the party. Soon after, he released his followers from their undertaking not to signify allegiance to the King and British empire.

The De Valera party's assumption of seats will result in a very close division between the parties in the Dail, with about five votes margin either way, and a speedy general election is anticipated.

If the opposition upsets the ministry, a new executive council, main ly of Laborites, is forecast, with Tom Johnson as president. The portfolio of external affairs, it is said, would be offered to Captain William Redmond, whose assistance is regarded as indispensable and who would be expected to negotiate with the British for modification of the oath.

The Fianna Fail decision is understood to have been prompted by the government's new electoral bill, passed yesterday, which prescribes that the oath shall be taken before a person can become a candidate for the Dail Eireann. This, it is said, made the Republicans' entry into the Dail the only alternative to political extinction.

Where's Emily?

by CAROLYN WELLS
Author of "The MYSTERY GIRL"

Story of a Girl Who Did Just What She Chose and Then Took Flight

Emily Duane, an "ultra modern," is about to marry Rodney Sayre, conservative, and scion of an old New England family. Emily, parentless, is extremely wealthy, charming, high-spirited and impulsive. What she wants, she wants—and gets.

Novelty allures her and Hindu mysticism is her latest fad. In her enthusiasm she places a clause in her will bequeathing a large sum to Swami Lal Singh, her teacher.

Two days before the wedding Emily decides to have a rehearsal of the ceremony. Burton Lamb, best-man-to-be; Betty Bailey and Nell Harding, bridesmaids; Polly Pennington, matron of honor, and her husband, Jim; Pete Gibby, Betty Bailey's beau; Emily, Rodney and Emily's Aunt Judy are talking things over, and among the subjects under discussion are the Reverend Mr. Garner, who is to officiate; "Spinks," an undertaker, whom Emily has designated as "Wedding Director," and—Emily's bequest to the Hindu.

Emily breaks into a rather heated conversation between Sayre and Lamb to find that her fiance is defending her right to do as she pleases as far as the Swami is concerned.

CHAPTER IV.

"ANOTHER thing," Emily went on, "since you feel so deeply about the matter, I'll tell you there's nothing in it."

"About fifty thousand dollars, I've been told," Lamb put in.

"Yes, on paper."

"But aren't wills usually on paper?"

"Yes, oh wise one. But, hearken. Said will, on said paper, becomes null and void when Miss Emily Duane, Spinster, becomes Mrs. Rodney Sayre, Matron."

"Of course it does!" and Lamb's face broke into smiles. "I knew that, but I forgot it. Oh, Emily, you're all right!"

"Then," Sayre said, bewilderedly, "when you go off with me on our wedding trip, you leave no will behind you?"

"That's right, my best beloved," Emily returned. "Should battle, murder and sudden death overtake me, you are my sole heir—"

"Hush, Emily, you aha'n't say things like that!"

"Well, my Heavens! Rod, you're my only heir anyway, so what need for a will?"

"There's Aunt Judy—"

"Yes, dear, but I trust her to you. And, anyway, I'm to have a little talk with Mr. Craven about all this tonight or tomorrow. And there's his massive dome now!"

Burton Lamb turned to look at the mentioned lawyer, but his glance paused halfway, for he caught sight of Lal Singh staring at Emily.

His face was distorted with passion, and it was impossible not to realize that he had heard Emily's remarks about her bequest to the Hindu, and was greatly upset in consequence.

Lamb chuckled, for he had no faith in the Oriental's sincerity, and hoped he would never receive a cent of Emily's money.

To be sure it was a legacy, but he was apprehensive lest the wily mystic might persuade Emily to make a cash payment in advance.

After her pronouncement, however, he felt at ease about the matter, and in a moment, Everett Craven, Emily's lawyer, joined their group.

Lamb then faded away, for he felt the business confab was only for the principals, and even a best man was not needed there.

Everett Craven had long been a suitor of Emily's. Though several years older, he was a man of persistency and determination, and her repeated rejections seemed only to intensify his resolves to win her.

Of course, since her engagement to Sayre had been announced, Craven had given up his suit though still attending to her legal affairs, he was a changed man.

A good lawyer, though of no brilliance, a good citizen, in a non-committal way, Craven had few friends and no enemies. He was uninteresting and rather self-centered.

As a matter of fact, Emily had thought little about him. She rejected his proposals as fast as he made them, and then, as he showed no special resentment, she continued to retain his legal services.

Craven continued, because she so now, taking the opportunity, Emily spoke to him, in Sayre's presence, about her will, and about the advisability of making a new one to be signed after she was married, and before starting on her wedding trip.

"But there isn't time now to discuss his best paying client, and he had none too many.

cuss this thing at length," she said, glancing at her watch. "Will you come tomorrow morning, at 10, and we can go into it? You see, we're having the rehearsal soon now, and I have to get rid of these people."

She danced away and Rodney's watching eyes saw her go to the telephone. This was just outside one of the doors into the lounge, and Emily found her maid, Pearl, hovering in the hall.

Pearl was a negress, as black as jet, and devoted, soul and body to her Miss Emily.

Not much older than her mistress Pearl did everything for her, and was so capable as a personal maid a needlewoman and to a degree, a social secretary, that Emily was tempted to take the maid with her on her wedding trip. But the desire to be alone with Rodney for their honeymoon was too strong, and Emily had decided to leave Pearl at home, and send for her if she needed her too greatly.

She smiled at the girl as she took up the telephone.

There was great understanding between the two, and Pearl stood sentinel as Emily talked.

As Emily became excited and her voice rose in exclamation, Pearl, too, rolled her eyes in delight, and clapped her hands softly.

For she overheard Emily's part of this conversation:

"Is this the Hospital?"

"Yes, madam."

"May I speak to Nurse Graham?"

"I'll see. Wait a moment.'

"This you, Nurse Graham?"

"Yes, Miss Duane."

"Has Mrs. Laurence's baby arrived?"

"Yes, Miss Duane."

"Oh, lovely! What is it?"

"A little girl."

"What! How is Mrs. Laurence?"

"Doing beautifully. I must go now—"

"Wait a minute, Nurse. Listen! If I come over, right away, can I see her?"

"Mrs. Laurence—"

"Oh, no, no! The baby, the little girl—"

"Oh yes, you can see the baby. I'll show her to you myself."

"All right, be there in ten minutes. Good-by."

Emily hung up the receiver and ran back to the lounge.

People were leaving, and though Emily gave farewells to a few, she whispered to Aunt Judy to attend to them for her, and told Betty Bailey to help Mrs. Bell.

Then she turned toward Sayre, who was where she had left him, and as she passed the Penningtons, she saw they were just going.

"By-by Polly," she said, "come over for rehearsal soon after 8—unless you're afraid of the undertaker."

"Oh, I'll be here Emily. If I'm late, don't wait for me, you can get along—"

"Sure. Don't come unless you want to."

Emily didn't like Pauline's attitude, but she was so full of jubilar matter she gave it no thought.

"Roddy-doddy," she said, and he knew she was about to wheedle.

"Well?" he said, snatching a little kiss from the back of her neck "What's up?"

"Kitty Laurence's baby is here!" "Oh!"

Sayre's pretended interest was so ludicrous, Emily pinched him.

"Keep still! I don't want anybody to know it, or the girls would all rush over. Now, I'm going to run to the hospital, just a minute, to kiss it."

"Kiss the Hospital?"

"No, silly, to kiss the baby. It's a girl—a darling, sweet little girl! And you know there's no such sure-

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR ARRESTED

Cave Carney "Lift Home" Shortly Before Car Overturns

Edward J. Carney, 50, Salem attorney and prominent in the Essex County Democratic circles, died at Salem Hospital early today.

Carney suffered a fracture of the skull when a motor car in which he was riding overturned at Fort avenue, near Cat cove, in Salem.

He was pinned under the wreckage with the driver, Henry Hooks of No. 7 Conant street, and Everett Frazier of No. 24 Becket street, both of Salem.

Carney and hooks were taken to the Salem Hospital. Frazier was badly shaken up. After treatment for his injuries, Hooks was arrested and charged with operating under the influence of liquor. He was driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

Widows, whose Carney lives at No. 11 ashton avenue. The driver happened to see Carney walking to his home and he stopped the car and invited him to ride the rest of the way, say the police. Resuming the trip, the car had traversed but a short distance when it turned off the road, then shot across some car tracks and overturned. It was said by the party that Hooks was forced to turn out in order to avoid an accident with an approaching machine.

'GIANT CITY TO COME,' BARRON

Veteran Financial Editor Sees Boston, New York, Philadelphia One by Railways

Clarence W. Barron, veteran financial editor, looks forward to a time when New York, Boston and Philadelphia will be one integral trading, shopping, motoring and pleasure-seeking community.

Writing in Barron's Financial Weekly on points out that in this step Lward establishment of such a super-community would be introduction of faster trafv service on the New Haven Railroad. Mr. Barron says:

"The most essential thing for the future development of New England is the conversion of the New Haven main line, which has practically a water level grade, into a railroad suitable for passenger and freight service between Boston and New [illegible] more overcrowded in shops, hotels, amusements and port facilities, with [illegible] all sports [illegible] good theaters, the best hotels in the world, and the best port facilities for travel and shipment with Europe.

"The New Haven can best serve itself and the whole country by quicker elimination of grade crossings, additional tracks, and a reduction in time of passenger train service between New York and Boston to four and one-half hours. This would enable Boston and New York to make daily round trips, with shopping and trading in both cities.

NEW FORD CAR SUCCESS IN ROAD TEST

Detroit, Aug. 11.—Production of the new Ford car will start within the next few weeks, it was announced today by the Ford Motor Company. The new model has been perfected, and is now in the hands of the public, it was said. Road performance of the new car is highly satisfactory, the company said.

The new automobile is capable of getting a speed of 65 miles per hour, officials declared. It is said to be able to attain a speed of more than 70 miles per hour without damage to the car. The new model is powered with a four-cylinder motor, and has a wheel base of 130 inches. Other specifications were not announced. Quick starting and acceleration are claimed.

MYSTERY VEILS SUDDEN SHIFT IN WEDDING DAY

Springfield, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—No reason accompanied the announcement received here today of the postponement of the wedding of Miss Edith Brent of this city who has been a silent movie saleswoman in a local Kresge store, to Chester Lawler of East Orange, N. J., whose father, Ovid C. Lawler, is superintendent of the Kresge department store in Newark, N. J.

The wedding was to have taken place today in East Orange and it was said today that the new date was Thanksgiving Day.

The engagement of the young people was announced early last month. Lawler met Miss Brent while a student at the International Y. M. C. A. College here. The wedding ceremony was to have been performed by Mayor Charles H. Martens of East Orange.

John D. Is Spending 'a Little Sunshine'

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"I enjoy golf, the game is one which I delight to play and by which I get much exercise and relaxation. I do not worry at all about golf. I play it for the sport of it and for the exercise it gives me. Golfing is one of my favorite forms of recreation."

Thus did John D. Rockefeller, oil magnate, made that statement after visiting his boyhood home in the Finger Lakes region.

"It is true that I am saddened now and then by the death of an old friend, but I make new ones and people are very kind to me. Then, again, I keep cheerful. There is enough gloom in the world and if I can spread a little sunshine in the world it helps me and I hope it helps others."

Cruze Getting Ready to Make 'Pioneer Woman'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—James Cruze's first personally directed picture for Cecil De Mille is naturally a matter of interest and speculation. I believe I mentioned in this column some weeks ago that Marie Prevost would star in the first Cruze-De Mille opera. This isn't by way of bragging at all—but merely to state that my guess was correct.

On Monday Mr. Cruze moves to the Metropolitan studio to begin work on "Ode to Reno." Ullin Landis, who played his first important part in "The Fighting Coward"—which Mr. Cruze always believed is his best picture, and which I have always maintained is one of his worst—will have the leading male role.

You might think that Jimmie Cruze, who made "The Covered Wagon," "Old Ironsides" and other of our more prominent "epic" dramas, would choose something on this order for his first Metropolitan offering.

Have patience, dear friends. As soon as "On to Reno" is completed Jimmie will spend a little research work for "Pioneer Woman," another "Covered Wagon."

"Come Over to My House" Yes, boys and girls, it's a movie title sounds innocuous enough, does it not? But to tell me it is a very risque comedy, based on a magazine story, to be directed by Al Green for the Fox company. Olive Borden will be starred and work will be started very soon. I suppose, however, Al Green, who is an enthusiastic fight fan, will still stand until after the Dempsey-Tunney fight. It's terrible what this prize fight is doing to the film industry.

A little agreement to disagree chances John Robertson's plans to direct Lon Chaney in "The Ordeal." John, in other words, is leaving Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer when he finishes with "Romance." His contract expires at that time, and although there were arrangements being discussed for him to remain and direct "The Ordeal," a little argument on policy, money, et cetera, made him change his mind.

These are halcyon days for young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. He no more than agreed to play the hero in 'Dead Man's Curve" for F. B. O.—and listen, movie readers, this is really an F. B. O. picture and not a Famous Players-Lasky automobile tale, as originally announced in this column—than Will Rogers invited him to play the juvenile lead in "The Texas Steer." Did Doug accept? Beyoned. With a Washington trip in the offing? He will hurry and finish his "Dead Man's Curve," so that he can join the Rogers company in Washington. Mrs. Beth Fairbanks is accompanying him, and they will, of course, take a look at little old New York.

"MOTH GIRL" WHO KILLED MOTHER, REFORMS IN JAIL

San Francisco, Aug. 11 (INS).—Dorothy E. Ingston, the "moth girl" who is serving a term in San Quentin Prison for killing her mother by causing death of person on "errand a dance, has returned, according to a letter from a friend to her attorney, Alexander Mordecai.

"I see where I have erred and I'm paying dearly for my mistake," she wrote. "With the help of God I am looking forward to a glorious future after I have finished my prison term."

CUNARD PLANS CANADA TRIPS

Anthony G. Cunard, great grandson of the founder of the Cunard Line, will join one of the three August tours of the line to Halifax the birthplace of his ancestor the originator of trans-Atlantic travel on a regular schedule, started by the Britannia in 1840. He has been active in exploiting these sailings.

As a young man Samuel Cunard began his shipping activities from his home port in Nova Scotia, his sailing ships calling at Boston, Bermuda and other ports.

The three deep-sea voyages to Canada travel in the regular Atlantic lane followed by ocean liners passing far out to sea.

It is the first time in its career of 87 years that the Cunard Line has allotted ships for cruises to Canada.

Returning vacationists will embark at Quebec on the Cunarder Antonia, sailing from that port for New York on September 2, arriving four days later.

A number of relatives from Detroit and Ontario were present at the funeral, which was simple. The body was taken to Boston for shipment to Detroit, where it will be interred.

STYLE EXHIBIT OPENS STORE

Boston's newest and one of the most completely stocked payment plan fur stores featured their opening with a fur style show on the third floor at No. 453 Washington street. Crawford's is the outgrowth of many years of dealing exclusively in furs and has been established to meet the demands of women and misses of moderate means for a modern payment plan in purchasing furs. One of the newest collections of furs has been gathered from the fur marts of the country.

The shop has been arranged for convenience and comfort as well as attractiveness. The woodwork is of dark stained mahogany and a display wall case keeps the merchandise fresh and clean.

In the center of the salon is a large, circular built-in red leather lounge. Full-length mirrors are scattered throughout the shop. Windows face Washington street, through which come air and sunshine.

Crawford's have private offices for the convenience of customers in opening accounts. Crawford's fur factory, on the fifth floor, has been engaged all Summer producing adaptations from Parisian and domestic models. These will be sold direct to customers.

The Most Colorful Episode of American History told in Peter B. Kyne's New Novel

THE Gold Rush! Volumes have been written about the Revolution . . . about the Civil War . . . and the World War. But the story of the Gold Rush, which united for the first time the great East and West of the United States and remade the nation as surely as the Civil War was to do it later, had not been done until Peter B. Kyne, noted son of California, was asked to do it for Cosmopolitan readers.

. . . And now Mr. Kyne has done it with the color that has distinguished his other works. It is a contribution to American history that Cosmopolitan's great audience will particularly appreciate. For these readers make up the class market of America . . . a market distinguished not only by its high standards of living and adequate buying power, but also by its reading habits.

Strachey, for example, believed there was a big public for worth-while writing done interestingly, and he proved it with his "Life of Queen Victoria."

Then came Will Durant's "Story of Philosophy," Paul De Kruif with "Microbe Hunters," and George A. Dorsey with "Why We Behave Like Human Beings."

It is for this mass of class readers . . . more than a million and a half . . . that Cosmopolitan is keyed and published. Its editing is based on the idea that the thing really worth talking about can be written interestingly and vividly.

"The Tide of Empire" is worth while . . . and most interestingly and vividly written. Do not miss it.

Bottle Throwers Only a Few Left

Modern Fans Like to Razz Not at All Sporting

By Nick Flatley

Nick Flatley

BOTTLE THROWING ALMOST OBSOLETE IN SPORT

THE young men who swap punches in the ring are not the only persons liable to maiming and sundry other disaster. This thought came to us at the Argonne show as a carelessly thrown bottle bounded off the ropes directly over our more or less precious skull. We were saved by the ropes, so to speak. Our head may be thick, but a pint bottle, empty, propelled with much indignation would undoubtedly have dented it severely.

The bottle may have been aimed at us, but as it arrived when some members of the crowd were booing a referee, it would seem that the arbiter was the target. The gentle habit of bottle throwing has almost been eliminated from our sports.

It was quite a pastime until a fan beaned Whitey Witt at a certain famous ball game out in St. Louis. Then it was practically stamped out. The selling of pop to baseball crowds was prohibited in practically all the parks in the land.

The same order was put through at fight clubs and other sports where enthusiasm and fanaticism were likely to ruin judgment. This campaign for the safety of customers, athletes, umpires and referees was a real success, and it is rarely now that the dangerous glass is observed flying around the scene of a close decision.

It was not a pop bottle that gave us this line of thought. It was a pint bottle, empty, in which something of a spirituous nature had been reposing a short time previously. It had the bouquet—pretty good stuff—and was still moist.

Tossing such bottles may start a reform that might well make a fan think. The deplorers may get after the misuse of all bottles, and even flasks, at great gatherings of more or less law abiding citizens. The purchaser of a ticket may be searched for bottles before entering a turnstile, just as the gunmen were fanned for their gats before stepping up to the bar in the good old Western days.

The horror of such a thought should doubtless restrain future chuckers from taking such desperate chances. It would take the kick out of a lot of things for a lot of the boys, and would practically ruin football.

THE GENERAL RUN OF SPORT FANS SEEM TO GET MORE CRUEL AND DEMANDING AS THE STAKES GROW. PRICES HAVE GONE UP, AND THE GANG EVIDENTLY WANTS MORE FOR MORE MONEY.

Strange, but the throwers never let bottles go before the contents have been inhaled. Perhaps the inhaling has something to do with it.

SOME MODERN FANS PREFER JEERS TO CHEERS

THE taking of pot shots at defenseless officials, who are doing their best, is actuated by the same misguided feeling that brings forth yells of derision these days, where, in other times, there would have been cheers of encouragement.

Two instances came to attention yesterday. In the first game at Braves Field, Manager Bancroft was razzed quite bitterly because his team was losing a ball game and he was helping to lose it. Bonny may have fallen down as a manager in the opinion of some fans, but his worst knockers must admit that he's a great ball player, and a real fighter. He's always in there doing his best. No man can do more.

He showed that by coming back like a champion in the second game and leading an attack that meant victory. He was cheered for that by the same crowd that booed him. But the sting of sarcasm is not removed by the balm of applause to any great extent.

In one of the prelims at the fight, two little kids, Gene Clark and Johnny Ross, were knocking each other's ears off. They were tearing along like a couple of dynamos and hitting with everything but the ringposts. Yet the anvil chorus was busy through most of their four rounds of desperate war.

As Eddie Mack, the successful impresario, remarked:

"Some of them palookas would howl if you gave the boys axes and sent them in there to make hamburg steak of each other."

Which is undoubtedly true.

CELLAR WAR ON AT WIGWAM

Braves and Phils Hook Up Today in Single Undersea Battle

The battle for the National League cellar goes on merrily today. The Braves and the Phillies have another war, a single one this time, and defeat for the natives will mean another flop into the cellar. The Trife was in there for a short spell in the opening double header but escaped by winning the final game.

Joe Genewich was pitted against Ed Reid and to this afternoon to keep the pesky Phillies from taking second and if he has supporting cast shows the brand of ball displayed in the Tuesday victory Joe should be able to do that.

Our Braves continue to be the greatest tenderfoots in the pastime. They looked terrible getting hiked and clean trimmed and paved like chumps in both ball games. The Fans who stayed in boo everything were cheering when it was all over.

Manager Bancroft came in for a lot of your cheers in that opening fray but passed like the star he is in the second one. That took courage and won the admiration of the bosses who were on the job before the fans was really decided.

Bancroft has been having his worries with injuries on the squad and still has a few cripples. Both Moore and Barnes are out with strained sides and will be missing for several days.

The latest addition to the Braves' big league family is Paulino, the Cuban outfielder who was purchased before next Sunday's game but he has plenty of courage and has been big time.

Paulino looks a million dollars better than most of the other players who came up for the first time. He has learned the game in short order and has a good throwing arm and is fast on the bases. He is a right handed batter and is ready for the test to-night.

Paulino is bothered by a boil on his right forearm, but he does not believe it will handicap his fielding.

Delaney rules a busy favorite in the betting.

There is plenty of room on the Braves' roster for Kiki Jaigos of Cuba, Ted Bedard and Cliff Dapkus, but Dapkus has reached the end of his usefulness and all of the others have been optioned to Hartford. Bedard is a pitcher and Jaigos is a catcher.

There isn't much to the story of Dapkus' release. He is a fine fellow and a good pitcher, but he has been unable to get his control and has been wild in every game he has pitched. He has been given every chance to show his wares and has failed to do so. He will be missed around the Braves' field, for he is a likable chap and has been a hard worker.

Dapkus was signed by Manager Bancroft last year and has been with the club all season. He was given a trial in the spring training season and showed enough to warrant his retention on the roster.

Bedard is a pitcher who has been with the club for a short time. He has been used in relief and has been unable to show enough to warrant his retention.

Jaigos is a catcher who has been with the club for a short time. He has been used in relief and has been unable to show enough to warrant his retention.

YOUTHFUL STARS ARE PLACED

Helen Jacobs and Betty Nuthall Paired in Wightman Cup Tennis

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Pretty Betty Nuthall, plump-faced 16-year-old British tennis prodigy, and blond Helen Jacobs have both been chosen to represent their respective nations in the singles play during the Wightman Cup matches scheduled on the picturesque turf courts here Friday and Saturday.

The official selections for the United States and English teams were made public at the close of the two days of trial matches.

Helen Wills, as had been accepted as a matter of course, was chosen as the United States number one player in the singles, while Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, captain of the British team, will occupy a similar rating in the British combination.

MISS JACOBS NO. 5.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, American national champion, was given number two singles position for America, and young Helen Jacobs, who has broken even with Mrs. Mallory in two matches played this year, was chosen number three.

Miss Joan Fry, who defeated Betty Nuthall at Wimbledon, only to fall before Helen Wills, was given Number two position on the British team, while Miss Nuthall was chosen above the veterans of the English squad to occupy Number three position.

The selection had other surprises in those furnished by the choice of the youthful stars for such important positions, and the most important of these was the announcement that Mrs. George W. Wightman, captain of the American team and donater of the famous international trophy, would participate in the play.

Mrs. Wightman, who had been named as non-playing captain, will form Number one doubles combination for America paired with Helen Wills

The official selections follow:

Selection of Mounts Is Yankee Problem

New York, Aug. 11.—With the British challengers in action today at Talbott Field, in Roslyn, which, weather permitting, will be dried out at that time, and other games determined only day by day, according to the weather, the next move of the American big four, now in progress, is the selection of the four-footed polo four that will be in action carrying the four stars responsible for the defense of the cup.

This is quite as delicate a matter as the picking of the men and is in the hands of Creston F. Burke from California, who has already had a chance to look over the available candidates.

While Mr. Burke is the last word in this matter, and responsible for the results, there are personal prejudices on the part of the players to be considered, fewer in Milburn's case than in that of any other member of the American team.

Milburn wants the mounts that will take him whither he is going. And he will get them. Only recently he was up on Judy, the famous pony bought from Jack Nelson of the Argentine.

After his experience on this mount, the American captain did not know whether it was a gelding or a mare, or what it was.

He had found a four-footed player from whose back he could make his strokes, and who required practically no attention so far as equitation was concerned. So it is certain that Judy at some time or other will be carrying the American leader.

There is no doubt that Winston Guest is entirely "sold" on Lovely Lady, the fast and beautiful chestnut that has given him the foot of the field more than once, and figured in the Intercollegiate championship to such an extent that she was mounted no other player could.

It is likely that his string will be materially built up by ponies purchased by A. C. Schwartz.

When the time comes, too, it is likely that the defeated candidates for the team will contribute not merely their own play, but some of their best mounts.

In this respect Watson will be almost as valuable an aid to the American team as if he were on the field. The nomenclature of Webb's mounts has run to the "girls." Thus Naughty Girl and Fairy Girl are likely to appear in the American string, while Gallery Girl seems to be out of it at last.

Argonne Show Receipts $8,000

Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Argonne A. A., announced today that the gross receipts for the Monte Munn-Dick Ferguson bout at Braves Field were slightly more than $8,000.

He also declared that the net receipts for the show were around $7,500. While Mack declares that the crowd was larger than the one that attended his first show at the Wigwam, the receipts were not as large. This he explained by the fact that 4,400 seats were sold at 50 cents, while on the night of the Gagnon-Rojas bout only 1,800 seats were sold at 50 cents, the others being $1 and $1.65 tickets.

AJAX FERGUSON FLOPS BEFORE MONTE MUNN

By RINGSIDE.

Monte Munn looking the part of a real heavyweight contender, made short work of Lightning Dick Ferguson in the feature bout of the Argonne A. A., held at Braves Field. The negro boxer, known as the Hon Coast Kid failed to show any class against Munn, the former Nebraska football star.

Munn, towering over six feet and weighing 214 pounds, had Ferguson groggy from the start. Ferguson meant well enough to get into the jam at the Wigwam, but taking a battering of left and right hand punches to the head and body sent his defeat in 3 minutes and 59 seconds.

The Nebraskan football hero just jolted the negro pugilist, who was a member of the 92nd Regiment, U. S army. The jolts seemed to be short and sweet and Ferguson did not fancy them.

Ferguson went down after a minute of fighting and took the count of nine. He came up only to receive a few more short body jolts and one to the jaw. Again Ferguson went to the canvas. He rose to one knee and heard Referee Joe O'Connor bellow out—1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

Ferguson, nicknamed Lightning Dick, hopped up and was proclaimed the victim of the giant Monte Munn.

The fans had a heetic night at the fistic carnival at Braves Field. With the exception of the disappointing main bout, everything was O. K. Sergt. Eddie Mack, furnished the fans with real bouts and plenty of excitement on the rest of the card.

The final bout of the evening's entertainment found George "Wop" Manollan in the ring battling for honors against Pete Bianco of Clinton. From the very start of the bout there was action. Then the battlers started hitting at close quarters and fairly low.

CLAIMS OF FOUL.

With such attacks came the protest of foul from the gathering and the boxers. First they favored one and then shifted to the other.

From the very start of the bout there was action. Then the battlers started hitting at close quarters and fairly low.

Eliminating the foul claims it would have been a great bout. Bianco finally went to the canvas in the fifth frame and took the fatal count. So did the large gathering of fans.

The show opened up with a four-rounder with Eddie Holmes winning the bout over Charles McGinnen [illegible] during Gene Clark, Lawrence and Johnny Ross, North End, went to Clark.

HENNESSEY'S CLOSE WIN.

Then came Spike Hennessey Waltham, facing Cannonball Cote of Lewiston. It was great battle and had the fans on edge from start to finish Hennessey was awarded the winner's glory, but the bout was close.

Cyclone Derouen, Nash a flippel Fall River of South Boston so had for three rounds at it Referee O'Connor stopped it a bout relying the hand of Derouen. Billy Curley of the West End also took the part of the giver and handed Eddie Springer of the South End a sound lacing. This bout, which was scheduled for six frames, was stopped at the close of the fifth.

Johnny Barrett of Cambridge won the verdict after six touch rounds with Georgie Forbes of the South End. The negro battler had a stiff right for Barrett, but the latter, showing plenty of class with both hands, managed to win the verdict. Barrett and Forbes gave the fans a real classy show.

The officials for the bouts were Pat Moran and Dave Nelligan. Judges: Jerry Moore and Joe O'Connor, referee, while Danny Whitbeed the watch.

CASS LIKES SHEPPARD'S CHANCES

Quiet and conscientious Johnny Sheppard is working harder than ever before in an effort to lift the New England featherweight crown from the brow of Sammy Fuller, the Italian Pancho Villa, whom he will meet at the Arena a week from tonight under the direction of the Suffolk A. A.

Sheppard, who has been working at Toland's gymnasium, has made a host of friends by his brilliant form and Cass, who once managed Frankie Britt and is now engaged in developing Jimmy Sears, believes that Sheppard has an excellent chance of defeating the confident little Fuller.

Both boxers are showing excellent form in their training, Sheppard at Toland's, and Fuller at Kelley & Hayes' gymnasium, where Harry Kelley, trainer of Jack Sharkey, is caring for him.

The debut of Jack Donohue, the gigantic Boston College athlete, who captained the football team there, is arousing no little interest in the coming Arena show, and hundreds will seek the Arena a week from tonight only to watch Donohue in his first pugilistic venture, a four round bout with Eddie Johnson of Quincy.

JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IF I keep on fighting long enough I'll be getting callouses on the inside of my knees from having my legs knocked together by the wallops of the more or less young men that I am called upon to spank.

In just about every important fight of my career the other dude has rapped me on the chin sooner or later, and had the legs wobbling and the knees bumping into each other. But I'm getting to believe that instead of that being a bad thing for me, it is really helpful.

For every time a fellow lands a good drive on my whisker department it sort of acts like a spark plug. I never can get going right until I'm banged on the chin and the knees begin knocking together.

IT'S nearly ten years since I fought the first important fight of my career. That one was against Gunboat Smith, with the murderous right hand. He nailed me with it in the second, right on the button.

My knees knocked together—and how! But I got over it all right and pulled a little rally, began to boat Smith all around that ring and I won out in four rounds.

Up in Milwaukee, the first time I fought Bill Brennan, he cracked me on the whiskers, too. Bang, bang went the old knees. Up to then I wasn't able to get started. After that I got going nicely and polished off Bill in six rounds.

It was the same Bill who had my knees cracking each other in the fight he gave me when I was champion along in 1920. Bill was rather rough with me for six or seven rounds, but most of the rough stuff was pulled with a jabbing attack. Then he changed his stuff and cracked me on the chin. The knees rattled. I heard 'em, as well as felt 'em.

I started to work on Bill then and it wasn't long before he was hearing the referee yell out something about "ten" over him.

LUIS FIRPO made my knees rattle, not once but quite a few times. But every time he hit me on the chin and the legs got to doing their shimmy I fought along just a little bit harder. And that fight, while it didn't last long, certainly had plenty of action mixed up in it.

It was back in 1921 when Georges Carpentier picked a right hand off the floor and threw it against my chin. Up to then I was just going along a little easy like with Georges just aiming to knock him down gradually and finish him with a few hooks to the whiskers.

But Georges cracked me on the chin, the knees began to rattle a whole lot. And right away I got the hyperus I needed, started after Georges and it wasn't long before he was on the floor.

CHARKEY hit me in that first round, and hit me one of those knee-rattling numbers, too. He almost came from top to bottom. Up to that time I was going along nowhere in particular. But after he once hit my chin, and made me sag—well, that made it all different.

I steadied down, knowing that the worst was over, and started to fight the fight that won for me in the seventh.

All I'm hoping is that Tunney has had enough on the chin when we meet again to make me lose track against each other—and I hope he does it early. If that happens—well, it won't be long before I'm champion once again.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

The pivot is a natural part of the golf swing, and whit confuses many players in the use of the swing is that they give it too much attention. Thus they begin swaying too soon, and that gets the body away ahead of things. When the club head is starting back do not turn the hips and shoulders immediately. The weight should first be transferred to the right leg (Fig. 1)—the right leg, in fact, absorb the weight much as you would depress a spring, gradually. When this done that was the left foot will lift slightly from the ground and the knee will start in toward the right knee, (Fig. 2) not toward the ball. This all takes place easily and naturally as you swing back with the club, and the point is that these actions follow the lead of the club. (Copyright, 1927, Chester Horton.)

Ballyhoo for Dempsey Peeves Gene Tunney

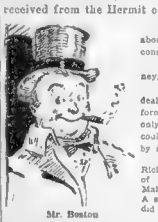
By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—"Gene Tunney is peeved because Jack Dempsey is getting most of the ballyhoo from Tex Rickard," Mr. Boston told the gang on the sidewalk outside of Madison Square Garden today. "I just had a chat with Tex," went on the veteran, "and he showed me a red-hot wire he just received from the Hermit of Speculator Lake.



Mr. Boston

"'Why do you always keep talking about Dempsey?' demand Tunney. 'Do you consider me a preliminary boy'

"The telegram was signed 'Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world.'

"Tunney believes he is getting a raw deal and it is getting under his skin. The former marine defeated Dempsey decisively only to find the public declaring that Jack could have won if he had not been bothered by so many lawsuits.

"All Winter and through the Spring Rickard kept talking Dempsey. His ballyhoo of Dempsey almost ruined the Sharkey-Maloney bout from a financial viewpoint. A show that figured to draw $400,000 barely did $200,000.

"SHARKEY reaped some of the benefit of the Dempsey ballyhoo when he drew a million-dollar gate with the former champion.

"While the spotlight was on Sharkey and Dempsey, Tunney was eating his heart out at Speculator Lake. He received scant attention from Rickard and the sport writers. Dempsey and Sharkey were made the great gods of pugilism.

"Rickard increased the wrath of the Hermit of Speculator when he said that Sharkey would make a popular champion.

"Then came Dempsey's victory over Sharkey and Tunney was completely buried under the Dempsey wave.

"Tunney could stand it no longer. He then sent Tex the telegram demanding to know if he was a preliminary fighter.

"'If Tunney is a preliminary fighter, he is going to get more money for a single bout than any boxer in the history of the ring,' Rickard told me. 'After the Chicago bout, Tunney will be paid off with more than a million iron-men. Pretty good money. I'd say, for any kind of a fighter.

"'I ASKED Tex what his heavyweight plans were for New York.

"'I intend to feature Jack Sharkey and the winner of the Delaney-Paulino bout in matches during the fall and winter,' he said.

"'I won't send Sharkey against the victor of the Delaney-Paulino bout until the outdoor season of 1928. If Paulino should win, he would draw a million dollar gate with Sharkey next year.

"'I have asked Sharkey to start light training so that he will be ready as an alternative if anything happens to Tunney or Dempsey. If there is any break in my Chicago program, it will be on the Dempsey end. Tunney would enter the ring with a broken leg to get that big shot at the money. Dempsey may get sick or suffer an injury and I want to have Sharkey ready."

MOVE TO CLOSE CHICAGO DOG TRACKS IS DELAYED

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Efforts of the State's Attorney's office to close dog-racing tracks in the Chicago district, where it is charged wide-open gambling is going on, have met with further court delay.

Judge P. L. Sullivan yesterday refused to hear a motion to dissolve an injunction under which the tracks now operate. A renewed court move to stop the races will be made next week, the State's Attorney said.

Refrigerator Hints and Recipes for Ice Box Meals

By MARTHA LEE

IN warm weather, every housekeeper makes more and more demands upon her refrigerator to keep perishable foods in good condition. Yet are there as many of us who fully realize the further service which this same refrigerator can offer, in our aim towards simplified meal planning?

Refrigerators and mechanical refrigerating units alike have ample claims for a share in those three meals a day activities, but not with out the whole-hearted co-operation and understanding of those of us who plan to use them.

You can be assured of a colder refrigerator if you will keep the ice chamber filled to capacity at all times. A mechanical refrigerating unit maintains refrigerator temperatures automatically, and once properly installed you will never attempt to make adjustments yourself in any of the working parts of the unit.

You must expect that the heat of Summer will influence the inside temperature of your refrigerator somewhat, and increase the amount of ice or power consumed. However, you can do your share to reduce such a condition to a minimum. In the serving of your three meals a day there are frequently many dishes, leftovers, butter, cream and the like, which will be stored in the refrigerator. Such foods should always be covered when put away.

Do as much at one time as is possible, for the constant opening and shutting of the refrigerator door helps to raise not only the inside temperature but the ice or power bill as well. Call your tea wagon into service to help you with it. One earnest Martha Lee reader, before putting her leftovers in the refrigerator, puts her dishes on a tray. This saves warming up her refrigerator by opening the door to reveal the contents preparatory to the next meal. Icebox system is paying her.

Refrigerators offer storage space for keeping perishable foods in refrigerated palatable. But do not expect from them its preservation powers of cool storage plant. As simple as you treat the shelves with jars and packages which would keep just as well in the cupboard, you are hurting the circulation of air and letting for a rise in temperature.

Can the small amounts of left-over food which you pop in the refrigerator be used to advantage? If so keep them there as short a time as possible.

If you use care in managing your refrigerator, cleaning becomes nothing more than an occasional task. Scalding and airing, which affect both the temperature and moisture content of a refrigerator, are not needed with a sanitary, seamless lined refrigerator of today. Instead, if you are careful to wipe up at once any food spilled, you need only wash the lining and shelves weekly with tepid water to which add a little meat. Such as a tablespoonful of washing soda solution, or borax, or a teaspoonful of baking soda. At the same time, of course, you should clean the drain pipe, using a long brush made for the purpose.

Here are suggestions for a few refrigerator meals:

Casserole of baked peas, grilled tomatoes, stuffed green peppers salad, fruit gelatine.

Meat loaf, new style creamed potatoes, corn on cob, sliced cucumbers, honeydew melons.

Jellied shrimp salad, egg and brown bread sandwiches, toasted cheese sandwiches, chocolate cornstarch pudding.

Stuffed green peppers, scalloped tomatoes, shredded cabbage, French dressing, berries, cream.

Sliced cold meat, potatoes with cheese, pickled beets, icebox cake.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

HEINZ PREPARED Mustard

A mild, snappy, yellow mustard

No eggs!
No oil!

HERE'S a fine example of that happy—but very rare—combination—a recipe which makes a dish more delicious and at the same time makes it less expensive. It's a marvelous salad dressing—unusually rich and smooth—yet it requires no eggs and no oil. That is because Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk is used.

Salad Dressing

1¼ cups Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
½ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt

Into the milk beat the vinegar, then the seasonings. Allow to stand a few minutes until it stiffens.

Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk has a place all its own in cooking. It is really two ingredients in one—pure, fresh, full-cream country milk, blended with finest sugar. It is more than twice as rich as bottled milk, because most of the water has been removed. And it is far smoother than any mixture you could make at home, because of the special process by which the sugar is blended in. The extra richness and smoothness makes Standard Milk the best milk to use wherever a recipe calls for both milk and sugar.

Keep Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk on hand. Use it for desserts, hot breads, icings, candies, ice cream, etc. . . And by all means, use it in your coffee! At one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar, it gives coffee wonderful golden richness and mellow flavor.

Get Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk from your grocer today!

The University of Michigan's Experiment

By Garrett P. Serviss
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

AT the University of Michigan they have been trying experiments with the students, which, if extended and confirmed, may change some ideas about education, heredity, effect of environment, etc.

The experiments were made with students in the engineering department. In the course of the tests the boys were segregated in accord ance with the showing that they made in their studies. The details of the scheme are given by Professor H. W. Miller in "Science." I only call attention to some of los results and conclusions.

Of the freshman engineering students concerned in the experiments about twenty per cent. were classed as "high" and another twenty per cent. as "low." That left sixty per cent. as intermediate in their standing—neither very good nor very poor.

Now comes a first surprise, as follows:

"The low students are, in the main, the children and grandchildren of American-born men and women. They also are the sons of the better educated and more prosperous parents."

And again, as a corollary and a contrast:

"A surprisingly large percentage of the high students are the grandsons of foreign-born men and women. They are the sons of parents having little education or none. In the main they are the sons of parents whose education does not include the high school. Twenty-four per cent. are the sons of parents who had less than a grammar school education."

Now, if this subject interests you as an American citizen, proud of his country and desirous of seeing it obtain the best possible results from the generous educational facilities that it affords, read these two additional statements:

"The low students had made relatively poor records on their preparatory school work, particularly on mathematics, physics, and chemistry. They made poor records also on reduced loads of work during both semesters in college.

"The high students had made an excellent, or good, record on their preparatory school work, particularly in mathematics, physics, and chemistry."

These last two statements carry the truths farther back toward its origin. They lay it nearer to the door of the home, to the influence of home life. An unmistakable emphasis is thus put upon the responsibility of parents.

Look at the contrast—as far as this experiment reveals it! Why should the sons of the better educated and more prosperous parents be set down as "low" both in preparatory school work and in college work, while the sons of uneducated or but slightly educated parents are set down as "high" in the same work?

Reed Tells How to Treat Jumping Toothache

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

MOST of us have been afflicted at one time or another with the "jumping" variety of toothache, the one with a regular excruciating throb, and remember that it is a much worse variety than the ordinary dull one.

There is no need to advise the sufferer to go to the dentist—he will do that fast enough—but it is the nature of the jumping tooth ache that it comes on in the middle of the night, when dentists are not easily to be had. The question is then, what to do about it.

The mechanism of the jump is this: The nerve tissue of the tooth is inflamed, and is consequently full of blood, for the defenses of the body are all doing their utmost to keep it full and so combat the germs which are trying to obtain a foothold in the tooth—that is, a very sensitive tissue. Inside a protective wall not stretch, is being swollen. But, added to this, there is a fresh supply of blood at a high pressure trying to get in every time the heart beats, and so at every beat there is a response by the tormented nerves—a "jump."

It tends to come on in the middle of the night, when the head is level with the heart less effort is required to force the blood to the tooth, and consequently the pressure is greater. It is no good trying to go on sleeping under these conditions. The only thing to do is to sit up and try to forget it. Once the head is raised the throb is reduced to more bearable proportions. A aspirin or two may be permissible at a crisis of this kind, and may tide the victim over until he can get to his dentist.

Jumping toothache may attack children with healthy teeth. That is because there is a tooth called a "six-year-old" molar. It is the first double tooth to erupt. It appears as its name implies, during the sixth year of life. The mistake many people make, when their children cut it, is to think that it is a milk tooth, which has been somewhat delayed and which will soon be pushed out by a permanent one.

Now this is a bad error, for it may induce a parent to neglect the tooth, with disastrous results. The six-year-old molar is a permanent tooth and not only that but the most important tooth in the permanent teeth. If it is allowed to decay in its first four or five years it will have to come out. If it is lost, the whole series is thrown out of gear, for it comes first for the others to "press by," and if they do not find it they tend to grow anyhow, and spoil not only the child's appearance, but his health, for a tooth out of place is generally an unhealthy tooth.

Good Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man. I am very much interested in a girl who pusbies me most of the time.

At times she is encouraging and makes me think that she cares for me. But at other times she seems indifferent about my company.

A short while ago I sent her a gift for her birthday, which she returned unopened. But upon seeing her the next time, she was very nice to me. I am almost positive that she doesn't care for anyone else.

Please advise me as to what I should do.

L. F.

YOU do not mention your age, my friend, nor that of the girl whom you admire. But I imagine that she is very young from your description of her.

Evidently she likes you, even though now and then you may find her in an indifferent mood. Cultivate her friendship and prove yourself a loyal friend. Later on, when you are in a position to become engaged and marry, you can learn whether she loves you by asking her to be your wife, provided she is old enough to know her own mind and consider love seriously.

As to the gift you sent her, is it not possible that her parents do not permit her to accept gifts from men? It is not in good taste to give a young lady to whom you are not engaged any gift of financial value, with the exceptions of books, candy, flowers and music.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

MY DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have made a wager with a friend, and I would appreciate it very much if you will answer this question:

Is it proper for a lady to hold a gentleman's arm while walking, and when is it proper.

M.

IT is not considered proper for a lady to hold a gentleman's arm when they are walking together on the street. It is not necessary, and it is not dignified for her to appear in public in the attitude of the "clinging vine." Some women take such a desperate hold on a man's arm—and what is worse, some men take such a desperate hold on a woman's arm—that one would think that they were taking every precaution against losing their companions! Of course the exception to this rule is in the case where the woman needs assistance. For instance, when they are walking on a slippery pavement, or when they are crossing a crowded thoroughfare, it is proper for the gentleman to say to her offers his arm, "Won't you take my arm? It is not easy to walk here."

My colored clothes wash brighter
—this safe, "no scrub" way

IT'S wonderful to watch everything come out so fresh and clean. I never knew my clothes could get so bright and new-looking. And I don't even touch a washboard.

I just soak the wash in rich Rinso suds. Dirt and stains float off by themselves. Clothes get whiter and brighter than I could scrub them.

Rinso is a granulated laundry soap, and it's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or harsh chemicals. I like it because it makes our water so wonderfully sudsy.

So easy on my hands! They don't get a bit red or washworn. Ask your grocer for

A Story of Sylvia Byrant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

Joyce Ackerman, society woman and wife of Vance Ackerman, a rich broker, appeals to a mutual friend, Alexander Ladd, a successful lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd persuades Mrs. Ackerman to install Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, in her home as her social secretary. Ackerman admires Sylvia's beauty and charm, and Stuart Gifford, a cousin, falls in love with her. Ackerman takes her to the theatre; Margot sees them and they adjourn to a cabaret.

Ackerman starts drinking and to get him away Sylvia feigns illness and he takes her to the Ackerman home. [illegible] hears a soft knocking on her door.

CHAPTER 16

STUART GIFFORD stood mute for a moment. His mouth grew secretive and repressed; then he smiled.

"That's a hell of a message to send over the wire, isn't it?"

"It is." Alexander Ladd agreed. "Winifred evidently has more distress than tact."

"A fool girl. I suppose she rounded my address out of them at the office." His smile was still pallid but he spoke with a forced nonchalance. "I wouldn't want Joyce or Vance to get hold of any such message."

"Of course not. Nor [illegible] Bryant."

"Nor Miss Bryant, naturally," he said with a trace of stiffness. "And by the way, in case that telegram seemed to put me in a discreditable light, you might as well know the truth. If that girl is in a desperate situation it's not my fault. I didn't cause it. She's just a girl I happened to do a favor for once or twice. Fact is, I've lent her money."

Alexander Ladd nodded. "But you don't have to do more to me."

"I'm not apologizing. I'm explaining. Don't you believe me?"

"Of course not," Ladd said brutally. "Why should I?" The telegram tells another story entirely. Also you have told me the truth—by willingly, of course, but by your manner of protest. Very few people would have been fooled by you, my boy, certainly not a lawyer, a skilled judge, of human nature. And I am that, don't forget it. I don't pretend to fathom the precise details of your entanglement with this Winifred, but, in the main, your case is quite clear. There seems to be no doubt in her mind that she has a definite claim on you. Also she sent her love. Working girl?"

Gifford's countenance was lowered his brows scowling. "I don't like to be called a liar, Ladd," he said icily.

"It isn't a question of what you like." Ladd replied. "You ask me to believe a certain thing and I politely decline. I thought, perhaps, you were going to ask my advice."

A shadow of a sneer was on Gifford's face. "I suppose you feel exceptionally qualified—in such a case as you imagine this to be."

"I am qualified to advise in all cases—even criminal ones," Ladd stated, ignoring the insinuation. "Sometimes these youthful romances involve distressing penalties. I wouldn't want to see you get mixed up in anything like that."

"You persist in being sinister," Gifford returned. "And I don't like it. I don't want you—or anybody else—to get any phony ideas about me. Touch! So I'm going to come clean, just to set you straight. I've been out with this girl a lot of times. She is dead head over-heels in love with me. Claims she can't live with out me—that kind of stuff. Talks about suicide. I used to like her, you understand, but it's all cold with me now. And that's all there is to it."

"She Can't Bluff Me," Gifford Said, "There Aren't Any Letters"

"Which is plenty," Ladd remarked. "What are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing." Gifford said crisply. "She can't bluff me. There aren't any letters. Oh, I'm in the clear all right."

"What does she want—money?"

"No, it'd be easier if she did. The fools always do marry her. A fat chance! Can you picture me married to a small-town—a sick bride—with small time blattered all over her? Not while I'm conscious."

Alexander Ladd grew remote. "Well, that disposes of Winifred."

"It certainly does. I'll phone down to the station and have the operator hold any telegrams for me till I call for them. And of course it isn't necessary to ask you to keep still about this."

"It isn't." Ladd informed him succinctly. "Now, I'm going to ask a favor of you."

"What is it?"

"Leave Sylvia Bryant alone."

Gifford stiffened. "Just what do you mean by that?" he asked evenly.

"Just what I said. I want you to leave her alone because I—because Joyce Vance and—I need her. I'm not a prude, please understand. You know, of course, that Joyce is trying to get Vance's mind off that Liggett woman. I think Sylvia is helping a lot. Also, obviously, you and Sylvia are steaming up an affair of your own. That's been apparent for some time. And it interferes—it queers up what Joyce is trying to do."

"What she is trying to do is to make Sylvia a valet for Vance's roaming affections, eh?" Gifford said. "Trying to get him to taper off—from Margot to Sylvia to Joyce. Well, I wondered what the game was."

"Now you know," Ladd replied "It put Sylvia in such a position here—and Joyce's sake. I don't want you to mess it up. I think it is fair to let Winifreds for you to play with and I, personally, would be very grateful if you didn't complicate matters. Later on—when this situation solves itself—I shan't have a word to say, of course."

Gifford smiled, not pleasantly. "That sounds pretty, but I'm afraid it doesn't quite hold water. Your altruism is pretty hard to swallow, Ladd. You couldn't very well pay much attention to a girl working in your office, could you? But if you planted her in an outside job—that would be different. And if you followed her down here into the mountains—and somebody else began edging you out—it grows annoying, eh, what?"

"With a mind like yours," Ladd said calmly, "I see I am wasting my time."

An arrogant shrug animated Stuart Gifford's shoulders. "I'll say you are. Frankly, you're rubbed me the wrong way, Ladd. You may be further interested to know that I never did like you anyway. As for Miss Bryant, I do as I please there, with her permission, of course. Is that clear?"

"Perfectly."

Gifford strode out of the room. When he had gone Alexander Ladd sat for a time alone, at last he rang a bell that sounded in the service quarter of the house. A maid appeared.

"Will you find Miss Bryant and ask her to come into my room, please? Tell her I'd like to see her at once."

fire good luck as to kiss a new-born baby. And I do want our wedding to be a success."

"Good Lord, Emily, what a kid you are! Am I to go along?"

"I should say not! You stay here and fend off routines. If any one says 'Where's Emily?' you say, 'why, she was here a minute ago,' or something silly like that."

"Don't be gone long—"

"Indeed I shan't. Why, they won't let me stay more n a minute. I know the nurses, you see, and she'll let me have a peek at the kiddy, when she wouldn't let any one else. You hold the fort here—don't budge from this sofa will you?"

"Do bub, I won't," and Rod looked the picture of half witted obedience.

"Oh, Roddy, you are so sweet," and Emily kissed him heartily, not caring whether they had spectators or not.

"Listen, dear. I've a much better good-luck stunt for you than that. I've a gold piece to put in your shoe. They say—"

"Oh, I know all about that. I'll have that, too, love it for the wedding. Now, Rod, don't fuss. I'll just scoot over to the hospital, cross lots it isn't a step. I won't be a minute and after say, ten minutes, you can tell them where I am, if you like, for I'll be home by that time. But don't tell them at first for Ned and Betty would come flying over, too."

"And I'm to sit here until Your Royal Highness returns?"

"Yes, right here on this very sofa. Don't budge."

Seeing Sayre alone, Abel Collins went toward him, and Rod beckoned him to a seat by his side.

The older man sat down, lighted the cigarette proffered him, and then said:

"I envy you, fellow."

"Yes, you may," Sayre returned, who liked the old chap, though he knew him but slightly.

"You see, I've known the Duanes, root and branch, all my life, and there's no finer stock anywhere."

"I can believe that," and Rod smiled at him.

"But there's one thing—"

"No, I thought there was a catch somewhere."

Abel Collins grinned.

"Yes, and it's this. There's a streak of stubbornness in the whole family. It's always there. Dormant, maybe, or prominent. But there. I'm giving you this tip for what it's worth."

"It's worth a lot, Mr. Collins. Don't think I undervalue it. But I admit it would be worth more if I didn't already know it. Do you think I could know Emily as I do and not be aware of her—well, we'll call it firmness of character?"

"Call it all the pretty names you like, it's stubbornness, obstinacy and pigheadedness. That's what it is."

"There aren't three men in Boston I'd allow to talk like that, for I know your affection for my girl, so you may say what you choose. And after all, even pigheadedness isn't a crime."

"No, it isn't. At least not in Emily. In her father it certainly is now being. Oh, well, let's not [illegible] old knowing it, you can make allowances."

Tomorrow—A girl in love with Emily's sweetheart.

MAURINE TRIES TO HUSH COUSIN ROY

Panther-Man's Temperature Reaches High Mark. Review of "Maurine," by E. W. Wilcot.

Roy

Today we stagger along and find Maurine still seated on the poison oak in the forest—her ears fluttering slightly as orphan Cousin Roy asks her to be his bride. If you are a subscriber to this paper, you already know that Maurine really listed Vivian Rangerfield, and Vivian loved her. But Helen Trevor, Maurine's house guest, was so goody goody Vivian that Maurine, as a matter of common courtesy, smoothered her own desires.

Maurine speaks—

Roy's form was like a panther's in its grace,
So lithe and supple and of medium height;
And graced in all the elegance of manhood.
His large dark eyes were full of fire and passion
And in expression fearless, firm and bright.
His hair was like the very deeps of night,
And hung in raven clusters 'round a face
Of dark and flashing beauty. As I gazed
Upon the handsome face to me upraised
I could not help but say, "Oh, foolish one,
Why did you shatter my delusion,
By turning to a lover? Why in God's name?"

Why, indeed! Roy had been a valued friend yes—and Maurine had let him get her sentimentally that she did not expect that he would suddenly go daffy and drool at the mouth. Quick as a flash, Roy answered—

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THERE are over 50,000 one-room apartments being built in New York City and most of them are so small that you can't have the mumps without moving the furniture.

ONE man caught the seven-year itch and had to go down in the lobby to scratch.

WHEN anybody wants to spend the night with him, he has to use the telephone booth for a guest room.

THE apartments are just big enough for a married couple if the wife is a widow.

THE Siamese twins rented a New York flat last Summer and one of them had to sleep out in the hall.

THE place was so crowded they had to keep sardines instead of goldfish.

THE living room was so narrow that one of the girls skinned her knuckles every time she played the accordion.

SHE even had to have her face lowered so that she could put her hat on in the house.

APARTMENTS are very scarce after October. Last year one family spent the Winter on a dumbwaiter.

THEY finally got tired of being pulled up and down, and next Fall they're going to move into a stationary wash tub.

EVERY inch of space is valuable. One landlord even rented the flag-pole to a couple of college boys.

BUT they couldn't get any sleep.

They had to spend the whole night saluting.

THOUSANDS of people are leaving New York and moving to the country where they can get a breath of fresh air without having to go down in the subway after it.

IN Manhattan, the apartments are built so close to each other that every time you look out of the window, you stick your head into somebody else's parlor.

ONE man says his daughter used to go necking without leaving her room.

SHE eventually got cross-eyed from ogling at a fellow around the corner.

BUT New Yorkers don't stay cooped up forever. Sooner or later they die and move out to a cemetery where living conditions are more comfortable.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

IF a woman has a golden voice, a silvery laugh and copper-colored hair, it doesn't seem to matter to a man HOW much brass she has in her make-up.

* * *

Apparently most of the younger set seem to think that they may as well marry now and then, since it won't last long, anyway.

* * *

No matter how incensed a woman may be with the man she loves nothing makes her so indignant as to have another woman agree with her that he is "a rotter," "a brute," or "a poor simp."

* * *

You can always tell a "gentleman" by the fact that he is slow to kiss, and quick to follow it up with a tender assurance, an apology—and another kiss.

* * *

To a woman, there are just seven keys to happiness: Love, work, sympathy, admiration, kisses, pretty clothes—and at least one husband. But, alas, it takes all seven to open the door to complete contentment.

* * *

Sometimes it seems a shame that we no longer believe in a "personal devil." It must have been a comfort to feel that there was SOMEBODY worse than yourself, to blame your follies on.

Alas, what a penal servitude we make of marriage, when we could so easily make it a heavenly refuge just by minding our own business, letting each other alone, and showing as much regard for each other's personal liberty as we do for each other's tooth-brushes!

Wonder what a taxi-driver thinks about love!

Radio Dialog

By C. WILLIAM RADOS

WHY do they call it the "WNAC Women's Club"—when a man always starts the program? Then they have the baby's health broadcast. Fine community spirit. But no babies are allowed to talk into the microphone. In fact, it is rumored that Major Fanning is going to prohibit parking babies in the studio. He says all he can hold is three.

* * *

Then we have the "National LIGHT Opera Company." We have not seen these singers of WEEI, but from the opera stars we have seen previously we know they are anything but light. Maybe light in comparison, but most certainly not in weight.

They tell a story how props were put under the floor at WEAF when operas first began.

Ever hear the "Friendly Maids" over the air? Over the air they may sound friendly. But just try to get friendly with one over the telephone, or down at Revere. Just try it.

Another apparent anomaly is the "3:00 p. m. correct time." If our clocks are good we know when it is 3:00 p. m. That being so why do we listen in at 3:00 p. m. to hear someone tell us it is exactly 3:00 p. m.

On the other hand, if we "id not know what time it was how would we know when to listen in for the correct time?

* * *

"Allspoo Drum Corps or Shriner's band." This is the way the program always appears. Can't they make up their minds which to play?

"Bert Lowe's all Star Trio." Next we will hear about Big Brother's Shakeless Six." He drives one.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

Tommy—Not exactly to see her, because there's no light in the room when he's there.

COD EMBLEM IS ONE THAT HAS MEANING

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

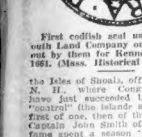
The Bay State's "Sacred Cod" is an emblem that has a meaning for all New England, symbolical of our first industry, not only for settlers but also for our first vis. If you are unaware of this latter fact, you will be interested to find, on visiting the Isles of Shoals, off Portsmouth, N. H., where Congregationalists have just succeeded Unitarianism in "control" [illegible] a charge first of one, then of the other] that Captain John Smith of Pocahontas fame spent a season there fishing. This was about the time when he charted New England and put Plymouth on the map before the Pilgrim Fathers landed.

First codfish seal used by Plymouth Land Company on deeds made out by them for Kennebec lands in 1661. (Mass. Historical Society.)

With occupational changes, many State emblems mean little today, but the cod will go on, like Tenny son's brook, for ever. Next year it will go on more than ever. After decorating revenue stamps, court seals, etc., and handing over the Speaker's chair in the Beacon Hill House of Representatives, the able Representative Frank Goodwin will furnish it to you on your next automobile number plate, before the



Rep. Frank Goodwin

Legislature Goodwin number and cetween the "1928" and "Mass."

The comparatively new fish pier in Boston with its unceasing activity testifies to the busy state of the fishing industry. A great advertising campaign is being put on by Maine sardine interests. A big fisheries concern has just been organized at Gloucester. A recent report of the Massachusetts Maritime Association on the Coast and Geodetic Survey will most painstakingly survey Gloucester harbor next year. The survey is made necessary by increased shipping entering the harbor, mostly fishing boats.

Federal Trade Commission promises to enter a field where authorities are likely to call forth more commendation than they have won elsewhere. The commission's planning investigation into sales of fraudulent securities, "blue-sky" investments, under general powers of the commission relative to interstate commerce, is expected to be announced shortly. The commission has already investigated operations of several companies selling securities delivered in different States. Orders as a result of these inquiries in preparation. An announcement of a general "blue-sky" investigation probably will be made simultaneously with issuance of orders relative to specific companies.

Politics has been upset and will continue to be upset for more than business, as the forcible retort of President Coolidge's announcement of a week ago that he does not "choose to run for President in 1928, according to Theodore M. Knappen, in an article in the forthcoming issue of the Magazine of Wall Street. He says that after Coolidge, the business world looks to Herbert Hoover as President and expresses the opinion that the latter would, as an earlier, the Boom and doing that does not do.

* * *

A while ago a Boston broker told me his house did not want women as customers, because they never found to be "too hard to deal with." This by many brokers is still the prevailing view in State Street circles. The latest innovation by a New York Stock Exchange house is instituted by McDonnell & Co., who have opened a special trading room for women in their Madison avenue branch.

BLACKSTONE VALLEY GAS IS AGAIN ADVANCED

In the outside market Blackstone Valley Gas & Electric advanced to 140@141, against recent prices of 136@138. Trading was also on the New York Curb at 140. This stock sold as high as 156 before the announcement of the voting trust, later dropping to 124.

State Street Notes

REPORTED plans for merger of Goodyear and U. S. Rubber are scouted in well-informed State Street financial circles.

NEW England Power on New York Curb's roster of wide, hardly 100 shares traded in today, but is moving up from 74 to 94, soon lost all its gain.

UTILITIES generally showed strength.

NEW York Stock Exchange membership of N. Y. Curb which has been sold to Max Reichenbach for $322,000, a new high record.

NATIONAL bank resources as of June 30 show increase of $1,366,000 in year to more than $26,000,000.

THE PULLMAN COMPANY
DIVIDEND No. 240

A quarterly dividend (No. 240) of two dollars per share will be paid August 15th, 1927, to holders of record at the close of business July 30th, 1927.

A Tour of the Parks

Possible, Now, by Motorbus

Letters to the Editor of the Providence Journal direct attention to the fact that at least one American city of 240,000 inhabitants is without a sight-seeing bus.

One writer suggests that the city authorities buy such a bus, in order that Providence folk may themselves become acquainted with Roger Williams Park, its 432 acres of forest and hills, its natural chain of lakes and its 9 miles of drives.

That there ARE thousands of city people who never get to know their own park systems will not be denied. The tourist makes it his business to see them; the home-towner hopes to "get around to it some day," but in many cases, as a matter of fact, does not know how or where to start.

In Boston, a bus line tour of the parks has been made possible only this week, through the co-operation of Mayor Nichols, the Park Board and the officials of the Gray Line.

While no doubt intended primarily for the accommodation of the tourist, this Gray Line tour of the parks offers an opportunity for Bostonians to know their Boston.

The tours leave Hotel Statler and the Copley-Plaza Hotel twice each day, at 1 and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The route is through Commonwealth Avenue, the Fenway, Riverway and Jamaicaway—passing the Arnold Arboretum—to Forest Hills and Franklin Park. Here, a stop of 40 minutes is made, in order that passengers may visit the Bird House, the famous Rose Garden and the Zoo. The round trip costs $1.25, by no means excessive when you consider the educational value and the scenic beauty of the trip as well as the mileage.

Boston is the home of no less than four or five sight-seeing bus organizations, which in the course of the year carry thousands of passengers to Concord and Lexington, to Gloucester and other Cape Ann points, to Plymouth and Cape Cod and to the White Mountains. Quite as many see "historic Boston," the Old South Church, the Old State House, Paul Revere House, the North Church and Bunker Hill.

There is no end to the things Providence, too, has to show the visitor; the wonder is that the bus companies have been blind to an opportunity.

"Home Grown"

Farmers Come Again to Boston's Open-Air Markets

The thrifty housewife of the big city, who cannot always come to the market district when she would like to, will be glad to know that once again the "city market" is coming once each week to Roxbury, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester and Charlestown.

This city market is really a farmers' market, placing the suburban poultryman and market gardener in direct touch with the consumer.

All that the farmers are required to do is register with the Department of Markets, whose office is in the rotunda of Faneuil Hall Market. They pay a nominal fee of one dollar for each day. Last year, these fees amounted to $1,782.00, showing that 1,782 truckloads of country produce were brought to town.

This is the eighth season of the outside market, which will continue, weather agreeable, until Christmas week. Each of the five districts will have one market day each week, as follows:

ROXBURY—Tuesdays; at Columbus Avenue and Roxbury Crossing.
EAST BOSTON—Wednesdays; Central Square and Day Square.
SOUTH BOSTON—Thursdays; Thomas Park.
DORCHESTER—Fridays; Bowdoin and Hancock Streets.
CHARLESTOWN—Saturdays; Monument Square.

Between 30 and 40 farmers, Superintendent Rose estimates, will be coming weekly to each of the larger markets. Their stuff is home grown. The customers will be glad to see them.

Fleas

Presence in Auto Cause for Divorce?

So far as the domestic felicity of the socially prominent Almiralls of Denver is concerned, there is a flea in the ointment—or several, perhaps thousands of them. Mrs. Clara May Almirall wants a divorce from Leon Vincent Almirall, prominent tennis player, because his automobile is infested with fleas.

"Love me, love my dog," returns Almirall, and the lawyers have hopped off on flights of oratory relating to divorce.

There have been many weird causes for divorce applications, but fleas in the automobile is a new one. However, the silly season is on full-tilt and, doubtless, before the warm weather is over this record for flimsy complaints will be broken.

Hairpins in the automobile have caused many divorces. In our opinion, fleas are a little less incriminating.

Wants

They Multiply Very Quickly These Days

A woman suing her husband in Cleveland for divorce has stated that she cannot live on the $24,000 a year she is allowed by him through a trust fund. She also claims her husband is "skimpy" because he refused her a $60,000 country house, a $12,000 car and a $6,000 speed boat.

The cost of marriage is, of course, rapidly passing all previous altitude records, but the attention of the lady should be called to the fact that there are several women in the United States who are living on somewhat less than $24,000 a year and are worrying along without country mansions and speed boats.

The lady who claims that she cannot live within an income of $24,000 a year might reflect that it is always easier to live within an income than without it.

SUCCESS REVISES A LIST OF FRIENDS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ONE of the drawbacks to success, one of the things you necessarily have to give up if you have the plaudits of fame, is friendship.

Not always, perhaps, but usually.

When you are poor and unknown you enjoy the companionship of your equals. The boys slap you on the back and call you Bill. When you become rich or famous you are Mr. Jones, or the Honorable William Jones, and if you are gregariously inclined you miss the hail-fellow-well-met of your fellows.

A story was published some years ago in a magazine describing how comfortable a worker was in the delightful associations that were his. Fellows and their wives used to drop over after supper and play a game of cards. He had a good time with the boys at the lodge meetings and circulated pleasantly at conventions. He knew a lot of people and people knew him. His soul expanded in the favorable atmosphere.

Then a millionaire in the town took a notion not only to appoint him general manager of his factory, but to leave him a million dollars.

Immediately all his relations with the other families became strained. Women either ceased to call on his wife because they would be suspected of currying her influence, or they called on her from interested motives. Somehow he was taboo among his fellows and he had to associate with the rich whom he did not like in order to get any companionship. He could not mingle with the boys any more.

It would be pretty hard for a man who knew Mr. Coolidge in his struggling days to have an interesting chat with him now at the White House. The suspicion would always come up that he had a selfish motive in recalling early associations, and perhaps he would have this motive, if he was human.

The other boys in the flying business who knew Lindbergh before he stepped upon the pinnacle of fame find it hard work to know him any more. He doubtless is a good fellow and would like to keep his early companionships, but he will find it hard work.

Somehow your former acquaintances drop away and you must make new ones.

For a man who is rising in the world more than for anyone else it is true that, as Dr. Johnson says, "one must keep his friendships in a constant state of repair."

Since he has got famous now or rich, his old friends say there seems to be a barrier between him and them.

Perhaps the satisfaction of fame or riches more than outweigh this, and then perhaps they do not.

If the Cambridge police can do their work without coats, why cannot the Boston officers shed their coats? ## LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M beginning to think that we attach far too much importance to the things of the head—too little to the things of the heart.

Once men FELT their way through life, taking counsel of their emotions, instincts, intuitions. Now we scoff at feeling as a guide and pin all our faith on INTELLECT. We reject Sentiment and worship Science. And our days are filled with a great blare and Busyness. We are Getting Things Done. But sometimes we wake in the darkness and cry like little children who long to be comforted. And Science cannot comfort us.

There is a wisdom of the head, but there is also a deeper wisdom of the heart. Those who KNOW things are not the best educated people. Those who FEEL things often have a closer grasp on Truth. The serenity in our souls is infinitely more powerful than the facts within our heads.

I have known great scholars whose wisdom was like blotting paper which all sap had been pressed. There was no laughter in it, or comfort or refreshment. And I have known poor, rough, working people who could neither read or write, yet who had a simple faith and comprehension which was like mellow wine. They had never heard of the ductless glands or the electronic theory, but they understood the working of love and desire, fear, courage and grief in the lives of men. Their searching hearts had arrived at the essential mysteries.

The man is a fool who does not acknowledge the value of Science, but he is an even greater fool if he thinks that Science has cornered all the values.

Francis Grierson once said — "Science in our day has, in a large measure, skipped the alphabet of life to arrive at a vocabulary of negatives. In vain do we place scientific invention on a level with the sentiments that spring from the heart and soul."

Indeed, Science itself has never accomplished anything unless the heart backed it. Behind every successful laboratory experiment lies the faith and fury of some man.

Pasteur gave his vaccine to the world after exhaustive research, but Pasteur himself did not seek the source of his own wisdom in test tubes. He said—"My philosophy is of the heart and not of the mind, and I give myself up, for instance, to those feelings about eternity that come naturally at the bedside of a cherished child drawing its last breath. At those supreme moments there is something in the depth of our souls which tells us that the world may be more than a mere combination of events due to a machine.

Walter Reed discovered the cause of yellow fever. But it was not Reed's trained mind which freed humanity from that scourge—it was the fighting faith which directed that trained mind, and the courage and devotion of men like Crooke and Folk and Jernegan who risked their lives to prove Reed's theory. Paul de Kruif in his "Microbe Hunters" tells how these three men allowed themselves to be sealed in foul, sweltering cells and there slept in sheets and blankets filthy with the discharges of dying men past helping themselves, or pillows soiled with the black vomit of men dead of yellow fever." Something warmer than an intellectual process beat behind that act!

Truth waits not only in the library and laboratory. She also hides her face behind the veil of human tears, the fire of human faith, the incense of our fumbling, human prayers.
